Miners Hit At British Laborites

LONDON (AP) One of the Labor government's most radical pieces of economic surgery so far drew howls of pain Friday from some of Labor's most devoted supporters—Britain's coal miners.

Lord Robens, head of the state-owned coal mines and once a leading Labor party politician, disclosed the government plans to slash coal maning manpower to 65,000 men by 1980. Britain now has 387,000 miners. A generation ago it had twice that many.

DELIBERATE

The long-range economic benefits of the shift from coal to electricity, oil, nuclear power and newly discovered natural gas under the North Sea are likely to be considerable. The government, as part of a major fuel review under way for months, appears to have made a deliberate decision to run down the mines as other nations already are doing.

But the move portends more political trouble for Prime Minister Harold Wilson, already under attack by a substantial minority of his supporters in Parliament for following orthodox financial polices to save the British pound.

LOYALTY CITED

"We don't deserve such treatment after our loyalty to the government," said Alf Hesler, secretary of the Durham miners union.

Like a number of left-wing Labor MPs, the miners feel Wilson has sold them out. Less than two months ago, he agreed to delay the closure of uneconomic pits during the winter. The miners' union then swung its votes behind the Labor government's economic policies at the Labor party conference.

Now they discover from Robens that their industry is due for what Will Paynter, general secretary of the miners union, calls "the kiss of death."

WON'T REMAIN

"Once these figures are published, no one who can get an alternative job will remain in the industry, and no one will want to go into it. The industry will be completely disintegrated of the figures are correct," Paynter said.

The official figures have not yet been published. Robens gave them to a secret conference of union leaders and regional economic chiefs Thursday night. They hit the morning papers with a shiver felt in the traditional mining areas of Wales and Yorkshire. Local officials started talking about "ghost towns."

CONTINUOUS RUNDOWN

According to Robens' figures as publisher, the rundown should be continous. In Wales, for example, where coal mining gave rise to the novel "How Green Was My Valley," 37,000 miners are to be cut to 20,000 in the next four years. By 1980 the figure is set for only 9,000.

In economic terms, this makes sense. Mining coal, especially along narrow British seams that would rarely be opened in the United States, is an uneconomic way of taking energy out of the bowels of the earth.

ATOMIC FUEL

Britain's state-owned electricity board just last month announced it could generate power more cheaply from atomic fuel than from a coal-fired station sitting right on top of a mine.

One of the Lucky Ones

A weary Army veteran was found napping Friday at the war Memorial on the grounds of Pottstown Public library. Perhaps as he dozes the faces of friends who died in battle pass before him. Maybe he is recalling that today the country pauses to observe Veterans' day, a day when all the nation's war dead are honored.

At his side stand plaques bearing the names of Pottstown's men who died in war. Some of the names have been inscribed for many years. The more recent ones date from the Korean conflict. Maybe he is but dreaming a silent prayer of thanks that his name, too, is not inscribed with his comrades.' (Mercury Staff Photo)

Johnson Discounts World War Threat

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — President Johnson, honoring the nation's fighting forces across the continent, said Friday that in Vietnam the United States is steering a course between surrender and annihilation—and will avoid starting World War III.

The commander in chief flew from the East to the West Coast. He pleaded at the outset for wartime unity, saying it will bring peace more quickly over an enemy "who will shatter against it." That was at Fort Benning, Ga.

ALWAYS WINNERS

Jetting to California nonstop, the President paused at the huge Camp Pendleton base along the Pacific shore to salute the Marine Corps on its birthday for "192 years of valor." He said Marines have always been winners and are winning in Vietnam.

Restating U.S. objectives in the war there, Johnson said the only victory the United States seeks is to keep a small country out of the hands of aggressors.

"You and I know," he said, "that it is harder and tougher to ask for and achieve a restrained and limited victory. One could surrender—or start World War III—and do either without much help.

the one we must steer between surrender and annihilation.

"That is where honor lies. That is where freedom waits. That is where we find our only

"But the hard course and the true course—the only course—is hope for true peace."

Thousands of cheering, enthusiastic Marines in uniform and ordinary spectators and families in civvies greeted Johnson at the parade ground at Pendleton.

He had gotten a big reception earlier at Benning.

In between, there was a smaller one at El Toro Marine Air Station 30 miles north of Pendleton.

The outdoor ceremony at Pendleton was capped by the cutting of a Marine Corps birthday cake, with the President slicing away with a sword. It followed a pageant carrying out a theme of Marine officers saluting enlisted men and the Marine Corps.

MARRIES MARINE

At both El Toro and Camp Pendleton Johnson did not fail to note that he will become the father-in-law of a Marine captain next month, when daughter Lynda Bird marries Capt. Charles S. Robb at the White House.

"As one who has watched a Marine pursuing his objective the past few months—I am impressed!" Johnson exclaimed.

Helicopters stood by at Pendleton to whisk the Commander in Chief to the flight deck of the world's biggest warship, the carrier Enterprise, a nuclear-powered veteran of two tours of combat duty off Vietnam.

From the carrier, just off the coast, Johnson was to view day and night air operations and to spend the night.

The tour ends Saturday with visits to Tactical and Strategic Air Command units and McConnell Air Force Base in Kansas, and to a Coast Guard station at Yorktown, Va.

Johnson had never visited any of the installations.

JOIN TOUR

The President was accompanied to Ft. Benning by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, and members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff were expected to join the tour at later stops.

Johnson watched soldiers engaging in hand-to-hand combat training, chatted with veterans of the fighting in Vietnam and with dependents of men overseas during the whirlwind tour of Ft. Benning, known as the "home of the infantry."

"You will always be the home of the brave," he declared shortly after presenting Silver Star medals to 15 Vietnam war heroes.

U.S. Halts 'Other War' Recruiting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recruitment of U. S. civilian specialists for "the other war" in Vietnam has been halted. The reason given is a lack of congressional appropriations.

In reporting this Friday, Agency for International Development AID officials said they have canceled recruitment drives scheduled this month in Austin, San Antonio, and Corpus Christi, Tex., Oklahoma City, Memphis, and Jackson, Miss.

DRIVES CANCELED

They said planned December recruitment campaigns in Portland, Ore., and Spokane, Wash., may also be canceled—depending of what Congress does—and possibly drives slated for Savannah, Ga., and Orlando and Tampa, Fla., too.

The officials voice concern that this break in their recruitment pipeline will cause irretrievable loss in AID's buildup toward a force of 2,600 American doctors, nurses, police experts, agriculturalists and others for the nonmilitary part of the U.S. effort to save South Vietnam from a Communist takeover.

They also said AID would be unable to meet certain Vietnam refugee aid commitments made by foreign aid chief William S. Gaud last month to a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

AID SUPPORT

According to the AID sources: Congress embroiled in a fight over President Johnson's request for $3.2 billion in foreign aid this year, has kept existing AID going but has not allowed funds for further hiring since Oct. 23. Money for this is not expected until Congress passes an aid appropriation, perhaps around Dec. 1.

Today around 2,000 U.S. civilians are on AID rolls in South Vietnam. To reach the 2,600-man target including overcoming normal attrition, another 815 civilian volunteers must be signed up.

Mansfield Sees No '67 Tax Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate majority Leader Mike Mansfield conceded Friday that Congress probably will not increase income taxes this year, but said President Johnson undoubtedly will press the issue in 1968 "when it will be far worse" in terms of dollars and of politics.

The Montana Democrat said a tax increase request next year might have to be larger than the $7 billion the President now seeks— and the question will be even more troublesome in an election year.

Johnson seeks a 10 per cent income tax surcharge to combat inflation and help pay for the Vietnam war. But the measure is locked in the House Ways and Means Committee, and appears likely to remain there.

STILL TRYING

"He hasn't given up," Mansfield said of the President. "He's still trying to get it, but with every passing day the odds climb agains him.

"If we don't face up to it this year, we'll have to do it next year when it will be far worse," he said. "It will be more unpopular. It may well be a bigger tax increase."

The size of a 1968 tax bill, Mansfield said, would depend on the amount of money Johnson and Congress can cut from federal spending.

That is a key issue in the Ways and Means Committee, which originates all tax legislation. Its members are talking in terms of a spending cut of $5 billion to $10 billion as the price for action on tax boost.

"I'm worried about this economic situation," Mansfield said in an interview. He said inflation this year will bost the cost of living by about 3.1 per cent.

But acknowledging that prospects for action now are dim, Mansfield said: "I think the members have their minds pretty well made up.

NECESSARY

"I still think a tax increase is necessary," he added.

Mansfield reported that the Senate has acted on 88 to 100 Johnson proposals it has received. His account of the Senate record did not include the tax bill, which never left the House.

Hulbert Taft, Broadcasting Chairman, Dies

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Hulbert Taft Jr., chairman of the Taft Broadcasting Co. and member of the famous Taft family of Ohio, was killed Friday in an explosion that demolished a bomb shelter on his estate.

Police did not recover the body until about three hours after the blast. The body was identified by Dr. Victor Straus, Taft's personal physician.

A gardener on the estate told police that Taft, 60, had entered the shelter shortly before the blast. It was not immediately known why Taft had gone into the shelter.

The explosion was in an old house on Taft's fashionable estate in Indian Hill, an exclusive Cincinnati suburb. It was about 300 yards from the main house.

BOTTLED GAS

The cause of the explosion was unknown, but Indian Hill police said the shelter probably contained bottled gas.

The Taft stations include WKRC AM-FM radio and television in Cincinnati.

The home of a WKRC TV news editor, Ron Doll, was destroyed by an explosion and fire early Friday, but Doll, a bachelor who lived alone, escaped injury by leaping from a second story window.

Police said there apparently was no tie-in between the explosions.

Police Urged to Get Water Guns

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's police are being urged to consider a wide range of supplemental weapons, including a super water pistol, itching powder and sticky blobs to glue rioters together.

The suggestions are in a report by the institute for Defense Analyses, which conducted its study of nonlethal weapon for the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice. Although the commission finished its work last June, the institute report was completed Friday.

35 FOOT RANGE

The super water pistol would have a 35 foot range and squirt a pepper based solution.

"Nonlethal weapons are not likely to replace firearms but they would fill a need in those situations in which the police cannot now effectively use firearms and have no other means of physical apprehension," the report said.

Among the recommendations and findings:

—The single most effective weapon now in the hands of police is the night stick, yet few officers receive any more than initial training in its use. A detailed study should be made of night stick use and training programs should be initiated.

—Chemical agents provide "the single most promising avenue for the development of new and useful police weapons." Though they are not likely to be a substitute for firearms they can be a useful supplement and alternative.

—Evaluation is urgently needed for several newly developed hand-held chemical agents, and various spray, mist and droplet projectors employing tear gas or other irritants.

—Use of dyes, markers and associated devices should be developed as a method of locating and identifying individuals.

A central research agency to develop new techniques, devices and methods for police weaponry is recommended.

The report says the over-all reason for considering use of nonlethal weapons "is that the law enforcement officer is neither permitted nor encouraged to use more force than is necessary to achieve his lawful objectives."

Problem situations range from dealing with an aggressive drunk to quelling rioting mobs.

The institute recommends establishment of a federal riot investigating team, similar to the Civil Aeronautics Board's accident investigation unit. Such a group would move quickly into a riot area to give on-the-spot advice to police and would examine the effectiveness of riot work by law enforcement officers.

Although the report makes no specific recommendation as to the use of new weapons, it lists some possibilities for controlling mobs:

—A foam generator to block streets or spray the crowd. Manufacturers of one such device claim people immersed in foam "are psychologically distressed by the loss of contact with the environment. There is also the feeling of being stifled."

Half Dollar's Future Secure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a continuing shortage, the Treasury Department has slowed production of Kennedy half dollars but officials insist there's no plan to discontinue the coin.

Miss Eva Adams, director of the mint, said Friday one reason for the lower rate of production now is that the shortage of halves has eased from its critical stages of a year ago and they are circulating more freely.

But halves are still being rationed by the Treasury for circulation through the Federal Reserve banks.

The mint had been producing half dollars at the rate of 24 million a month earlier this year but the pace in October slowed to 12 million and it isn't expected to exceed that during November and December.

Officials said the mint will meet its goal of 295 million halves this calendar year and production schedules for the first six months of next year call for 100 million pieces.

It's no secret that the Joint Commission on the Coinage—set up by the 1965 act which took silver out of quarters and dimes—will discuss the half dollar at its next meeting on Jan. 11.

SILVER REMOVAL

But treasury officials say the coin's future is secure although there's always the possibility the commission could recommend removal of silver from the coin. The half is the only U.S. coin being made currently which contains silver, an important industrial metal.

Miss Adams noted, however, that Congressional approval would be required to remove all silver from the half.

The Kennedy halves have been hoarded, Treasury officials theorize, as mementoes of President John F. Kennedy whose likeness they bear. Another theory is that many persons hoard halves as a convenient way to save money. Miss Adams said many people don't like to carry them because of their weight.

Treasury officials said they now have twice as many dimes and quarters on hand for the Christmas rush than they had one year ago.

Total government inventories as of Nov. 1 totaled 5.25 million quarters and 4.25 million dimes, all the new copper-nickel sandwich type. At the same time last year inventories totaled 1.11 million quarters and 2.57 million dimes.

Grain Futures Market

CHICAGO (AP)—Wheat and corn futures declined more than 2 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of trade this week in dealings marked mostly by speculative liquidation.

It was the fifth straight week that wheat prices have declined and corn and wheat set seasonal lows across the board.

When trade closed on Friday, wheat futures were 1¾ to 2⅝ cents a bushel lower than a week ago, December 1.47¼-⅜; corn was ⅝ to 2¼ cents lower, December 1.12⅜-⅛; oats were ⅜ lower to ¼ higher, December 71⅝ cents; rye was 1⅞ to 2¼ cents lower, December 1.17-¾; and soybeans were ½ lower to 1⅜ higher, November 2.64¼.

There was little incentive for prices to move any appreciable distance in either direction. The range of prices for all commodities indicated some hestitancy on the part of the trade not to depart too far from the price line.

Livestock Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Butcher hog prices advanced from 25 cents to 1.50 at the Chicago Stock yards this week, while slaughter steers and heifers moved 25 to 50 cents ahead, but wooled slaughter lambs were 50 cents to 1.00 lower.

The hog fluctuations depended largely on weights. Hog receipts at Chicago totaled 28,000 head compared with 30,800 the previous week and 30,900 for the same week in 1966. At the 12 major markets, hog receipts last week totaled 297,500 compared with 300,500 the previous week and 288,400 in 1966.

Cattle receipts at Chicago totaled 26,400 for the week, compared with 27,300 the previous week and 27,400 last year. At the 12 major markets, cattle receipts totaled 200,100 for the week, compared with 187,500 the previous week and 182,100 for the same week last year.

Chicago sheep receipts totaled 1,700 last week, compared with 1,300 the previous week and 3,000 for the same week a year ago. At the 12 major markets sheep receipts totaled 50,900 last week, compared with 58,000 the previous week and 48,400 in 1966.

To WHICH CHURCH did the APOSTLES BELONG?

There is much unnecessary confusion about the beginning of the Christian Church—the early New Testament Church to which the apostles belonged.

Much of this confusion is rooted in the fact that some segments of Christianity in the twentieth century have claimed the early New Testament exclusive ancestry. In so doing distortion is presenting the picture of the early Church.

The fact is, the early Church did not have various "faiths" and "denominations." It was simply composed of those who came to believe in the risen Saviour, Jesus Christ. Through their faith in Christ they knew that they would be saved from the wrath of God. The Bible says that "the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved." (Acts 2: 47)

Bible - believing Christians today do not maintain that the Church is made up of just one sect or denomination. The basis of membership in the Church has not changed since the first century. The Church is still composed of all those who believe in Jesus Christ as Saviour. It is still made up of all those who are saved.

There is close fellowship today among Bible-believing Christians in numerous Protestant groups, just as there was close fellowship among the various groups of believers in the days of the apostles. Among these believers the Bible has always stood as the supreme authority in spiritual matters.

Through the Bible message of salvation these Christian believers have come to know a newness of life which was known to the apostles — and to all believers of their day. The Bible says that "if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." (II Corinthians 5: 17)

If you should like to know more about the church—the great fellowship of those who believe on Jesus Christ as Saviour—you will want to have a pamphlet which has been prepared for your benefit. You may have it FREE of charge if you will write to:

- PHILOSOPHY -

The purpose of American education is to produce an individual who, within his capacities, functions as a good citizen, lives a personally satisfying life in accordance with our moral, ethical and democratic standards, and engages in some socially acceptable work.

Since more than half our high school graduates engage immediately in full-time work and since many of these are working at jobs far below the level of their mental and physical aptitudes, two needs become more and more compelling: the need of the individual to have an education enabling him to face the demands of working in an industrial economy, and the need of sufficient vocationally competent individuals to maintain its economic vigor and productive strength.

The vocational-technical school is the answer to a great part of this problem. If a student is to be fully educated, he must be equipped with resources and skills that will favorably affect his pursuit of a lifetime career. Vocational-technical education as a partner of or a supplement to general education can supply this segment of the total education of youth.

Governor Connally of Texas Won't Seek Re-election

AUSTIN, Tex. (AF)— Texas Gov. John Connally, who twice nominated Lyndon Johnson for president and who was wounded in the gunfire that killed President John F. Kennedy, announced Friday he will not seek re-election in 1968.

Connally's decision that he called "agonizing" cleared the way for a free-swinging governor's race and deprives Johnson of the help of the popular governor's name in the Democratic column of the Texas ballot.

The President's control over the state delegation to the 1968 Democratic convention in Chicago might not be as strong without Connally in charge, but a delegate revolt by Texans is unlikely. It also jeopardizes the President's control of the state Democratic organization.

"I have reluctantly concluded that after the drain of what will have been eight years of vigorous public service, I no longer can be assured in my own mind that I could bring to the office for another two years the enthusiasm, the resilience, the patience that my conscience would demand and the state would deserve," Connally, 50, said.

NAVY SECRETARY

The eight years included service as secretary of the Navy under Kennedy. He will have been governor six years at the end of his current third term which ends in January 1969.

Lt. Gov. Preston Smith announced his candidacy for governor weeks ago.

Reports circulated throughout Texas that an announcement he would run for governor was imminent from Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex, who three times lost the Democratic nomination for governor. But Yarborough said in Dallas Friday that he will not announce his intentions until Congress ends.

Yarborough is a longtime bitter political foe of Connally a part of the ancient Democratic split in Texas between the liberals, now headed by Yarborough, and the conservatives headed by Connally.

Former Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr, former U. S. Rep. Joe Kilgore, Houston lawyer Don Yarborough and former state Sen. Franklin Spears have been named in published speculation as possible aspirants.

With the popular Connally out of the way, Republicans would have their best chance in years to elect a governor. Former Atty. Gen. Will Wilson, who switched party labels, is a frequently named possibility, as is Rep. George Bush.

Connally, a longtime friend of Johnson and a force in behind-the-scenes Texas politics before his election, nominated Johnson for president at the 1956 Democratic convention and worked hard for his nomination in 1960.

Connally resigned in 1962 to run for governor.

Opponents called him "Lyndon's boy John" and asserted Johnson had sent him back to keep the state in conservative Democrat hands.

The governor was riding in the car with Kennedy when the President was assassinated in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963, and himself received severe bullet wounds. Connally placed Johnson's name in nomination for president at the 1964 national Democratic convention.

Mrs. Kennedy Flies Home From Orient

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Looking pale and tired, Mrs. John F. Kennedy flew homeward Saturday after 10 days of viewing splendors of the Oriental past and southeast Asian modern life as a guest of royalty in Thailand and Cambodia. She is flying westward via Rome.

Her visit to two realms affected in different degrees by the nearby Vietnam war was scored nonofficially as a clear personal triumph and it may have diplomatic significance, as well.

In Cambodia, President Kennedy's widow viewed the temple ruins at Angkor and dedicated a street in Sihanoukville to her husband. Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's chief of state and her frequent escort, called her "the best representative America ever had."

In Thailand, Mrs. Kennedy attended three dinners and a palace luncheon in her honor. Her last day was spent visiting Bangkok's canals and floating market and shopping for Thai silk and antiques.

Stains

By DR. EDGAR T. CHRISEMER, Pastor
Transfiguration Lutheran Church

On the floor of a certain famous room in Holyrood Castle in Scotland is a sinister-looking stain. It is a grim reminder of the fate of the man who was secretary to Scotland's best-loved queen. It was his blood that reddened the floor. He forfeited his life at the scene of his sacrilege. He might have been forgotten long ago, but he got himself remembered through the ages through the stain of his sin.

The dark stains in our lives have a way of stamping their impression on the memory of humanity.

Ever newspaper has its "morgue", a record filled with photographs and biographical sketches of celebrities. Let Mr. Jones run for office or for a bus disastrously, or head South with more than one suitcase and out comes the photograph, together with other personal items of interest.

But the "morgues" contain notables only. We must climb high or fall low to merit its attention. We must be a good deal better or a good deal worse than our neighbors on the block. We must run for something, or away from it, to find our place in the "morgue." For some men wake up to find themselves famous; others stay up all night and become notorious.

The trouble is, very few of us have the ability or the opportunity to climb very high, but it is within our means to fall very low in society. And when we fall the stain of our mistake blots out from the public view all the good we may have done. We who might otherwise be forgotten are remembered through a stain.

As a practicing physician, Dr. Samuel Mudd had saved many lives during a Yellow Fever epidemic. But when he set the broken leg of John Wilkes Booth, who had just assassinated Abraham Lincoln, he was convicted as a conspirator and, without trial by jury, was sent to prison for life. His name is remembered not for the lives he saved but for the single stain society attached to it. And today, anyone in a hopeless situation will declare his name is "Mudd."

Thus the stain of a single misdeed can bring us a recognition that a lifetime of service cannot give. It isn't because life is unfair and judges too harshly. It simply means that if you want to rise high, you must also risk falling low; and the higher you rise, the further you may fall. And all because men insist on recognition of their deeds.

During the Franco-Prussian War the Germans were in possession of a village and General Neil approached the gunner, Pierre Hurlat. "See that little cottage at the foot of the bridge?" asked the General. "It is a nest of Germans. Train our gun on it and see what you can do."

Pierre pointed the yawning muzzle toward the little house. There was a flash and a roar at the cottage and it was demolished. But the General never knew that it was Pierre's own house.

Everyone wants to get up in the world, and most of the world's urgent work must be done close to the ground.

When an ambulance surgeon praised a patrolman for his skill in handling an emergency case, saying, "You ought to have been a surgeon," the officer replied: "What's wrong with being a policeman?"

Who really knows just which is the most important business in the world? Nothing that needs to be done is unimportant.

If we are content with doing our job without recognition, we need not worry about the stains.

Veterans Day

Forty-nine years have passed since the first Armistice Day when the Central Powers led by imperial Germany surrendered to the free world after four years of the bloodiest war in history. It was the first broad-scale effort after Napoleon to bend the world to the totalitarian will.

But the seeds of despotism were not made sterile by defeat. Twenty years later there was another powerful grouping to whip the world and erase freedom. This time it took six years of blood and tears to crush the forces of tyranny.

A tyrant regime, Soviet Russia, was by force of circumstances on the free world side in World War II. The free nations expressed their gratitude to the Soviets by granting them territorial and other concessions and overlooking the conquest of a dozen nations by the Reds.

The communists have shown their gratitude by trying to undercut the free world everywhere. But the United States still remains strong.

The war in Vietnam, where more than a half million American men are engaged in bloody fighting and thousands are dying, was started by the communists in furtherance of their plan to enslave the world.

In view of the unending contention between free and despotic worlds, and the violent expressions of that cleavage through 49 years, the original Armistice Day has been renamed Veterans Day. And the original embattled members of the American Expeditionary forces have been joined by millions of others.

Veterans Day is in honor of those who have sprung to the defense of a free America. It recognizes those who are fighting—and stand ready to fight—against yranny today. No day in the year has more meaning for the nation that has done so much for its own people and the human family generally.

Peace cannot be made and guaranteed by charters and treaties, by profound speeches and declarations. Nor can it be maintained by a sentimental addiction to copybook maxims. Peace is not a state of "no war," a suspension of violence, a negativity.

To see it as one or all of these is to insult the sacrifice made by those who went out to win it and bequeathed it, however, briefly, to mankind.

The Worry Clinic

Housewife's Work Is Strenuous

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Gwen G., 34, is a harassed mother who vigorously accuses me of "picking on" wives unduly.

After she had expressed her gripes in words, which is a form of emotional catharsis, she calmed down.

And when I agreed that husbands should help shoulder the evening chores if a wife has several kiddies, she actually smiled.

"Dr. Crane," she added, "you mentioned that it is harder physical work to hang out laundry on the line than to lay bricks.

"Were you exaggerating just to make us wives feel good?"

WIVES WORK HARD

No, I wasn't exaggerating at all.

Indeed, wives often do more walking, lifting and other strenuous physical work than their husbands!

We have scientific evidence to support that viewpoint.

The amount of work involved in various tasks has been tested by means of the oxygen consumed per minute.

For oxygen consumption is an index of the calories burned up in any given job.

The more calories you consume per minute, the harder physical work is involved.

So just look at the relative calorie-consumption per minute of the following tasks:

Task	Cals./Min.
Lying abed	1.0
Fast typewriting	1.8
Playing piano	2.5
Making pies	3.3
Making beds	3.9
Laying bricks	4.0
Ironing clothes	4.2
Hanging laundry	4.5
Playing golf	5.0
Walking downstairs	5.0
Pushing lawn mower	7.7
Playing tennis	10.2

Making pies, for example, is almost twice as strenuous as the fast typewriting of an office stenographer.

And making beds is almost as fatiguing as the job of a bricklayer.

Ironing clothes and hanging the wet laundry on the line are more strenuous tasks than laying bricks.

Notice, too, the heavy drain on physical energy that is required to push a lawn mower.

ADJUST TO TASKS

Obviously obese middle aged men should gradually adjust to such heavy tasks as barbering their lawn.

Indeed, it is good "heart insurance" to hire a neighborhood boy to trim your grass. That gives him a chance to earn money, too.

After the age of 30 to 35, men who hold down sedentary jobs in offices should beware of rigorous athletics, such as tennis.

Even golf is 25 percent more strenuous than laying bricks.

So you wives often consume far more energy than your supposedly overworked husbands.

And if you measure your steps via a pedometer, you may be surprised at the many miles you travel daily inside the house.

Husbands, send for my 12-point "Tests for Husbands and Wives," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope. Write to Dr. Crane in care of The Pottstown Mercury.

Defeat of Dr. Yerger is Rapped

Wrong Choice

To the Editor: I'm not a politician and I'm not usually a letter writer but I feel that Pottstown did an injustice to a fine school board member when Dr. Brower Yerger was defeated.

I am a patient of his and I know that he was trying to do a good job and I think he was succeeding.

I can't figure out why anyone voted against him.

It's a sad state of affairs when one person who is doing a good job is neglected and not appreciated.

Our children were benefiting by his handling of the board and now our children will be the losers.

Pottstown always was a peculiar town, filled with a bunch of ingrates and this election proves it.

I couldn't blame Dr. Yerger if he threw up his hands and told the town to go straight to the devil.

Spending Cost

To the Editor: Time and again I hear people say that if they had a million dollars all their problems would come to an end.

However, I'm inclined to believe that for those people, that's when they would begin. For these people it's not a matter of having a million dollars, because they evidently can't control what little they do have. So what would they do if they had a lot? Unless one is trained in the art of control of spending, amount doesn't make a difference.

Because if you gave those people a million they would then need two million. We sometimes tend to blame the high cost of living, but I do feel we shouldn't forget about the high cost of spending. It is certainly good for the economy when people buy, but not for the economy at home. Advertisement influences the way we spend a great deal, because when we see ourselves driving that new car across the desert sands we become infatuated with the thought. But that's only temporary feeling from the time we drive it from the dealer to our front door. I can realize that there are many occasions when things do come up. But most of the time we bring them up.

Tyranny

To the Editor, "Taxation without representation is Tyranny." The slogan we fought a war for. And yet we have people in Chester County who would rather pay taxes to the city of Philadelphia than where they can vote; where they can educate their children; where congress represent them; and where their neighbors will help them in time of need.

I am proud I live in East Coventry, where I can vote; where Mr. Stauffer and Mr. Slack represent me in congress; where my children go to Owen J. Roberts, the youngest accredited high school in the history of Pennsylvania. (We were but four years old when we became accredited.) I know that my neighbors will help me in time of need because they often have.

What can these lawyers tell their consciences to try to escape their fair share of taxes to the township that gives them the very land they sit their homes on? What does Philadelphia do for them? Why aren't they fighting the city of Philadelphia?

Parochial Aid

To the Editor: There is quite a bit being written about aid to parochial schools. I don't think it would be wrong if the government assisted in the secular education of parochial schools. Religion books should not be purchased but books that deal with other subjects should.

I have no one attending parochial school, incidentally, but I don't think it would be unfair to support them.

I especially believe we should help our own citizens when you think of what we spend in foreign countries and some of the money which is wasted on silly practices in government.

Separation of church and state is fine but the aid to parochial education would do nothing to harm this relationship.

Pottstown PRACTICAL

Football Critic

To the Editor; What happened to Pottstown's football team this year?

I thought the new coach was supposed to be such an ace. I won't go to any other games. A team like this doesn't need my support. But it needs a little morale boosting among other things.

Pottstown EX-GRIDDER

Choice

To the Editor; In the letter from "Fair Play" in the Mercury, he talks of discrimination against children by those who do not wish public funds used in support of private and parochial schools.

To vote against House Bill 1136 (or the so-called Mallon Bill) is not discrimination against children. Parochial and private school children have the same right to attend public school as all other children and, it seems to me, are discriminating against public school children by electing to attend a private school. This is the right of any parent to select the school he wishes his child to attend. But if he chooses a private school he should not expect public tax money to be spent on his child's private education (or even on his books or buses).

Our laws now state that religion may not be taught in public schools and, therefore, tax money must not be used to teach religion. If the parochial schools were to receive tax money this would be illegal and any parent would have the right to bring suit against them to prevent the teaching of religion there as well as in the public schools and I am sure that this is exactly what will happen if tax money is used to aid them.

Anyone who wants his child to attend private or parochial school should have the freedom to choose to do so; however, he should also then expect to pay for his child's education since public education is available to his child the same as to any other child in our state. It is the parent's choice, not the public's, when children attend private schools.

Pottstown MRS. W. R. M.

Facts

To the Editotr: In answer to the letter from NOT A CASKET FACTORY WORKER.

The person who wrote that should make sure they have the facts straight before they say something such as that.

They stated that the union pickets were preventing the agencies from selling caskets; which they are not. They are only picketing the factory itself. They will allow any local person, who identifies himself to the pickets, to obtain a casket from the company.

In the letter this person wrote to The Mercury; they stated that Ford Motor's strike did not prevent agencies from selling to their customers Ford's products. In a sense they did because Ford was unable to ship from the factory because of the pickets. This is the purpose of picketing and the pickets at the Casket Factory are trying to do the same thing as Ford.

The picket is one of the few weapons a Union can use on Management during a strike. If this right to prevent the company from production during the strikes stopped a union's bargaining power is reduced to practically nothing.

A Different Slant

By ROBERT J. BOYLE

Saturday Morning Quarterbacking

The old pro, William Boden, head of Pottstown's Republican party came through in a pinch despite critics among his own party.

Some Republicans were running scared. They were sure of losing the election and blamed their lackluster campaign on Boden.

Two of the three school board candidates who won never even as much as made a public statement on their aims or proposals for running the school. They were totally silent.

But Boden said he was working silently for the past several months

The biggest suprise was the defeat of Dr. Brower B. Yerger, school board president.

If there was one candidate who deserved to win it was Yerger.

Even his Republican opponents agree that he served the past six years with efficiency.

He is a conscientious, dedicated school director. He spent thousands of hours of his free time to advance the educational potentials and facilities in Pottstown.

He worked well with school officials and was instrumental in bringing the standard of education in Pottstown to its highest level.

Under Yerger's guidance, each child was looked upon as an individual. Education became more personal.

The best teachers were hired and retained.

Despite this, Yerger lost.

The reason for the loss baffles both parties. Many top local officials and businessmen can't understand the loss, especially in view of the silence on the part of the Republican candidates.

Many look upon the outcome as a slap in the face for a man who did a fine job.

Much is blamed on the Second ward race where Republican James V. Ottaviano nearly toppled Democrat Bernard Verbit. The ward always was considered a Democratic stronghold. The 17 vote victory of Verbit was an indication of the pulling power of Ottaviano and the more Ottaviano pulled the fewer votes Yerger got.

Despite Yerger's loss, along with the two other Democratic losses, the Democrats still retain control of the board.

Daniel Marquette probably will replace Yerger as president in January.

Yerger is philosophical about his loss but the fact that he was hurt can't be denied.

Mayor Joseph A. Suchoza blames apathy for the defeat. Yerger ran way ahead of the rest of his party, but Suchoza believes that many felt he was a sure thing and didn't bother to vote.

On the other hand, Boden made sure his people got out the vote.

Some feel that the most important factor in Yerger's loss was that his name was listed under the name of James Christman, GOP candidate. Many feel that the voters felt if they couldn't vote for Yerger if they voted for Christman because of the location of the names.

Suchoza said that if the town could do it all over again that Yerger would be a sure winner.

"It was a vote against the Democratic party and not the man," Suchoza said.

Some circles feel the loss could be attributed to a backlash over the appointment of a local man as Pottstown's police chief.

They feel that the school board loss is reflected in a dissatisfaction with the way a chief will be selected although it is possible that a local man will get the job.

Enforced traffic enforcement coupled with the hundreds who got parking tickets a month ago for parking facing traffic also was given by some as an explanation.

"You can't ticket 500 people for something they've been doing for years and not end up with some ill feeling," one local Republican said. "That ticketing splurge was the best thing that happened to the Republican party this year."

Prior to the outcome of the voting, a candidate dropped in The Mercury.

He was discouraged. "This is the worst we have ever been," he said, "I don't mind losing to Yerger but the others will beat us, too. I think we should have spoken out more. Most of us didn't say a thing this campaign. How can we win when we're silent?"

Later that night he was discussing the results. "I was a little doubtful," he said, "but when I saw who was going to the polls I felt we had had a chance. But I never in the world thought we would beat Yerger."

It has been suggested that because of Yerger's dedication, that another Democratic member of the board step down and allow him to continue.

This was done previously after a Republican upset.

But it's doubtful whether Yerger would accept this. He would feel that the voters have chosen, although it couldn't be a true criterion of the feeling in town about Yerger.

Although he is disappointed by his loss he does see the bright side of it.

He'll be able to spend more time with his family.

Their gain is the town's loss.

Mini-Gridders

The name of the game is football, and these 85, 95 and 115 pound mites play it as fiercely as their 200 pound counterparts.

Their practice sessions are as well organized as the high school teams as they relentlessly try to perfect such intricate phases of the game as the split-T, audibles, red-dogging defenses, trap blocking, and Z-in patterns.

The youngsters are part of the M&M Rams football program, which is now in its seventh year of sponsoring the three Knee-Hi teams.

Each team practices twice a week and plays its games on Sunday afternoons.

The organization is equipped with everything, from energetic cheerleaders to a staff of coaches, who contribute their time during the season to make this program a success.

Tomorrow the three M&M teams will climax their regular season by holding the annual Turkey Bowl triple header at The Hill school field at 12:15 p.m.

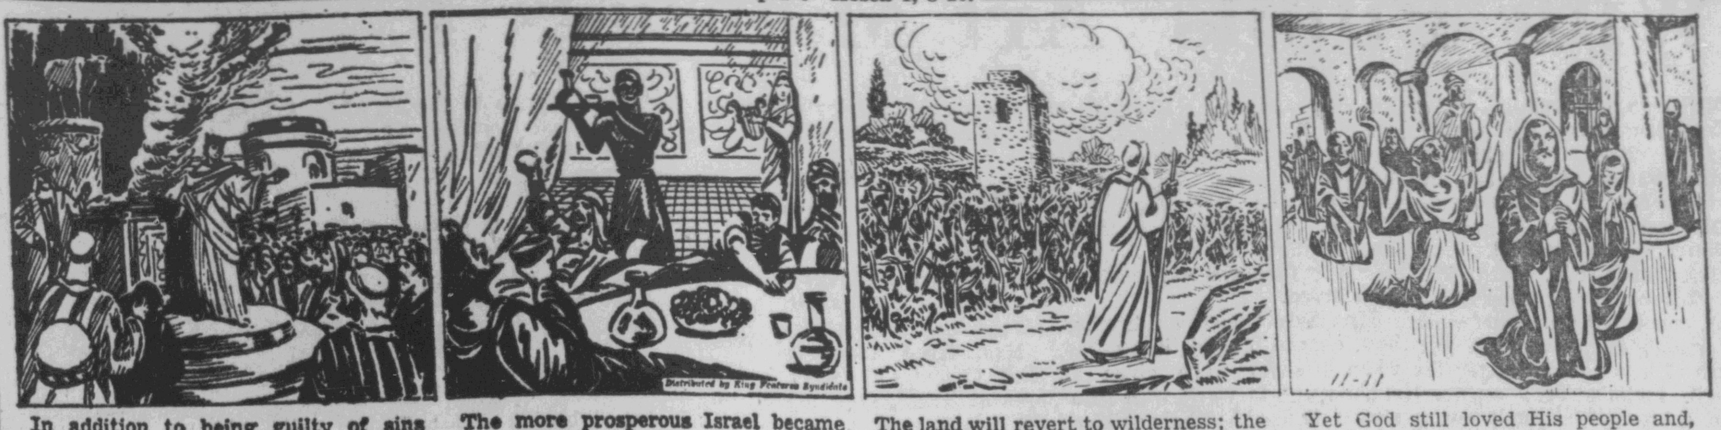
The Lure of Other Gods

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Hosea 4, 8-10.



Distributed by King Features Syndicate
11-11

In addition to being guilty of sins against humanity, the Northern Kingdom had forsaken the one true God and become idolatrous.—Hosea 4.

The more prosperous Israel became the more she persisted in sin, eventually repudiating her God entirely. Judgment was imminent.—Hosea 8.

The land will revert to wilderness; the people will become helpless and be cast away and wander among the nations of the earth.—Hosea 9.

Yet God still loved His people and, despite their iniquities, true repentance will save them.—Hosea 10. GOLDEN TEXT. Exodus 20:3.

Believers, Nonbelievers Will Exchange Thoughts

By GEROGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A versatile team of believers in God plans some frank talk with nonbelievers—and not for the traditional purposes of persuasion.

The religious adherents want to learn.

"We need to invite constant challenge from those who hold other sincere positions," says the Rev. Avery Dulles, of the Jesuits' Woodstock College in Maryland. He adds that understanding of truth can profit from it.

In launching the project for such exchanges, an interfaith panel asserted that abandonment of classic religious premises has become a swelling phenomenon in this country.

"We're facing a deluge of nonbelief, particularly among our youger generation," said Dr. Dumont F. Kenny, president of York College here and chairman of the new group. "The problem of what's causing this disbelief is not remote or marginal. It's all around us."

Prominent religious scholars, of Jewish, Protestant, Roman Catholic and Islamic faiths, took part last week in the formative meeting on whether such talks should be initiated, and agreed to do it.

OPENING CHAPTER

"This was the opening chapter of a dialogue with nonbelievers that will go on with complete candor," Dr. Kenny said.

Although interchurch groups, here and abroad, previously have cultivated talks with Marxist atheists, the panel agreed this was far afield from the bulk of American nonbelievers.

And the new move was aimed at involving them.

"A vast segment of the American people, never ever concerned with Marx, have become totally indifferent to the religious point of view," said Rabbi Arthur Schneier of New York.

He added that this included "thousands and thousands of men an women on college campuses" to whom religion "was totally irrelevant."

The session planning the project was called by the John LaFarge Institute here, a unit founded in memory of the late Jesuit theologian to foster interreligious approaches to current problems.

TAKE PART

Besides Jews and Christians, other upholders of the ism-belief in one supreme, creative deity—took part in the session, including Dr. Muhammed Abdul Rauf, director of New York's Islamic Center.

The Rev. Dr. Harold A. Bosley, pastor of Methodism's Christ church here, said that even though many nonbelievers were concerned with social justice, it was because they themselves were nourished in a religious tradition.

"Their ethical concern grew out of that tradition, but they've broken out of the pattern," he said. "A rebel spirit has burst the ecclesiastical mold. This is what's forcing dialogue upon us."

Despite the rebellion, he said, "we've got to find a way of keeping in touch. We've got to recognize that we don't have a 'plentude of faith' that supplies all the answers."

An Austrian Catholic scholar, Erick von Kuehnelt-Leddihn, questioned whether theists could accept the idea of learning from agnostics and atheists on a mutual give and take basis.

"There is no common denominator," he insisted.

He said the two sides couldn't even use the word "man," without meaning very different things—the believers meaning persons of divinely created worth and dignity, and nonbelievers meaning a "variant of the baboon." "We would come to the round table with an affirmation, they with a negation or question mark," he said. "We are not ready to accept any part of their anti-theology. We want to give them something of our own treasures."

BOTH CAN GAIN

Others, however, maintained both sides could gain.

"To find out more about the positions of others can help us see the relevance of our own faith," said Rabbi Dr. Joseph Lichten of B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League.

Father Dulles said, "If we're to speak to the contemporary world, the only way we can do it is to listen to what the nonbelievers have to say."

He added: "My religious ideas, my ideas of doctrine, are constantly influenced by others with a different well though out position. Religious people have to disabuse themselves of the notion that they've arrived at a full understanding of what God is and wills without letting it be challenged."

Dialogue with those of contrasting views, he said, can help us "realize the inadequacies of previous naive concepts" to "the benefit of faith. We go into this in order to be better Christians, and find out what God is all about."

Kuehnelt-Leddihn conceded, "Whatever the outcome, verbal exchange, in sympathy and affection, does have an intrinsic value."

An episcopal clergyman, the Rev. Dr. John M. Krumm of New York's Ascension church, said he saw the present tide of apparent irreligion as implying a "new decentralization of faith."

"It's an age when faith is more enlightening than when it was taken for granted," he said, and predicted it may foretoken a "greater era of faith than we've had in half a century."

Sen. McCarthy Denies Report About Decision

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., has denied that he has already decided to oppose President Johnson in several presidential primary races next year.

McCarthy called unfounded a report in Friday's Washington Post that he would oppose Johnson in the New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, and California primaries.

The 51-year-old Minnesotan, who has become increasingly vocal against President Johnson's Vietnam policies, made the comment to a reporter after his latest public attack on Johnson Thursday night.

The Post story said McCarthy had decided to make a bid to wrest the nomination from Johnson and that McCarthy would announce a decision Saturday night to enter the March 12 New Hampshire primary.

The senator is scheduled to speak in Boston as the third stop on his current tour. Friday night's schedule has him at Ann Arbor, Mich., and on Sunday, he's to be at Chicago.

An aide to McCarthy said "there will be nothing like that on this trip," in reference to the purported decision to enter the New Hampshire contest. The senator is to speak at the College Young Democrats national convention at Boston and hold a press conference afterward.

Lawyer to Address Unitarian Session

Willard C. [illegible], a lawyer from Perkiomenville, will address the Pottstown Unitarian Universalist fellowship tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. in Cedarville Grange hall.

His subject will be "Ethics in Law."

The Golden Text

"Israelites Worshiping the Golden Calf"

"Thou shalt have no other gods before me."—Exodus 20:3.

By R. H. RAMSEY

Hosea's message to the Northern Kingdom is a series of vivid denunciations accompanied by God's pleadings to turn away from their sins that He might restore them to favor.

Just how far the Northern Kingdom had fallen is revealed in the opening statement of our lesson. Not only is Israel guilty of sins against humanity — swearing, lying, committing adultery and murder—but she has forsaken the one true God and become idolatrous.

It was one thing for the nations surrounding Israel to worship idols, for they knew no other. But it was treason for Israel to give her allegiance to false gods for she had been redeemed by the one true God.

Over and over again the prophets sent by God to Israel — and Judah, as well — repeatedly reminded her of this shameful turning from God, for from this basic sin all other trespasses and iniquities spring. The people of Israel had all the guidance, teaching and revelation necessary to know God and find salvation, yet they fell into idolatry repeatedly and finally repudiated God almost entirely.

Despite the predominant baseness of the people, there must have been some who still clung to the religion of their fathers and served Jehovah with their whole hearts and minds, for Hosea issues a warning to these people not to imperil their own religious safety by coming into any contact with Ephraim, a synonym used throughout the book for the Northern Kingdom of Israel.

Because of Israel's special former relationship with God, her punishment for her transgressions will be the harder. After cataloguing her sins, Hosea takes up the punishment to be meted out to this rebellious and wayward people. The land would mourn, the livestock waste away. God would reject His people as they had rejected Him—and bring them into a state of dire need.

For the most part, chapters 8 to 10 deal not so much with Israel's sins — though they are mentioned—as with the punishment that must follow.

When Israel first demanded a king to rule them, the prophet Samuel was strongly opposed to this, but acceded to their wishes at God's order. Nonetheless this was a transgression of the covenant, for God, alone, was their King. However the early kings of Israel were guided by God but when the kingdom was divided after the death of Solomon, the kings chosen by the Northern Kingdom were bereft of His guidance and direction. Jeroboam I set Israel upon its [illegible] path by instituting calf worship and forbidding the people to return to Jerusalem in Judah for the religious feasts. Succeeding kings followed his example and, despite God's warnings through the prophets, the dynasties grew worse and worse.

Idolatrous altars were set up on every eminence and hilltop, multiplying the sin. Sacrifices, ostensibly in obedience to God's commands, were offered to Him. But God, wanting obedience instead, spurned the sacrifices of His sinful people.

The more prosperous Israel became, the more persistent she was in idolatry. Enamored of their own power, the people turned their backs on God and built magnificant palaces to reflect their personal glory. But when Israel rejoiced heathenishly at a bountiful harvest, attributing it to the blessing of Baal, the Lord could not let such denial of His grace go unpunished. The Northern Kingdom was ripe for judgement. And judgement was imminent.

Just as the people were helpless when God chose them for His own, they will be helpless again. Women will become barren, and the few children who are born will be slain. Because they failed to hear and obey Him, the people will be cast away and become wanderers among the nations of the earth.

The land will revert to wilderness and the people, frightened by all that has already happened and fearful of things to come, will beg the mountains to fall upon them and bury them.

Yet God still loves His rebellious people, and that love breaks through the warnings and prophecies of impending doom. He longs for His people to return to Him and, despite prior iniquities, true repentance will bring His righteousness and blessing upon them.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS
from The Bible

If the Son makes you free, you will be free indeed.—(John 8:36)

The struggle for freedom and independence is part of man's history; it is his continuing story. A nation may celebrate a day of independence, as we do in the United States, but the matter of freedom and independence is an individual one. There have always been people who were free in the midst of bondage; there have always been people who were bound in the midst of freedom.

Larceny Foiled

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

The Roth-Stone system in action is an awesome thing. When an opponent opens the bidding, a Roth-Stoner stays out of the auction until the right time has come, but then he bids and bids and bids—and must play the cards just so to land on his feet.

Opening lead — ♠ A

When today's hand was played in the recent team selection tournament in Atlantic City, N.J., New York expert Alvin Roth passed the South hand to start with. This didn't stop him from bidding the hand to the hilt later.

West opened with a weak two bid in spades, showing a good six card spade suit in a hand not quite worth a normal opening bid. After North's pass East tried a raise to three spades.

Since East had passed originally, Roth detected a strong aroma of herring in the raise. Clearly, both opponents were trying to steal the hand, and Roth is not an easy man to rob. He doubled for a takeout and bounced himself into four hearts when his partner made a minimum response to the takeout double.

FINDS BEST PLAY

The play was not without its problems, but Roth can find the best play as well as the best bid. West opened the ace of spades and led another spade to the queen. Back came a diamond, and South stepped up with the king to lead a low heart at once.

West won with the king of hearts and led a third spade. Roth ruffed in dummy with the queen of hearts and returned the low heart to take a finesse with the ten. This worked, and the ace of hearts drew the last trump.

"Nobody steals from the Perfessor," Roth remarked after this little demonstration of his system of bidding and play.

DAILY QUESTION

Dealer passes, and you are next, holding: S—9 7 3 H—A 10 7 6 2 D—A K 10 7 C—9. What do you say?

ANSWEN: Bid one heart. This is not worth an opening bid in the Roth-Stone system, but most experts would consider it well worth a bid. You can afford to pass if you are ready to be a genius in the subsequent bidding.

What the Stars Say

By STELLA

TODAY—Born today, you are one of those rare persons who, although he may not be in the limelight of success himself, is found behind the scenes as the power behind the power. You could well reach a position of influence in which by a mere word or inclination of the head you could make or break others. Such power is not to be taken lightly, however, and he who possesses it must realize that when other peoples' futures are at stake, there is no room for a frivolous attitude.

A generous supporter of any project which you feel can be of benefit to men as a whole, you are far less generous in your support of endeavors meant for the lining of a single pocket or the making of a single reputation. Always behind whatever will create the largest good for the largest number, you could well become a political force of national, perhaps worldwide, importance.

Although you enjoy the things that money can buy, the search for money is not one of your chief activites. You would far rather do without things than to gain them through means that went against your own moral code. Strictly honest in all your dealings, you will seek success along straight and narrow pathways.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

TOMORROW

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Don't let yesterday's heated discussion handicap your day. Forget about the past and act only upon your future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) — Best to think over matters pertaining to a partnership with extra care today. Act on your decision tomorrow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)—Take advantage of your own assets rather than another's and you should lead the field by nightfall. A good day for moving ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—Morning worship should set the tenor of the day. Make the most of time spent with loved ones.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 21)—Focus on matters having to do with the attainment of personal, rather than career, goals. Let your emotions speak for you.

ARIES (Mar. 22-Apr. 20)—This may well be the day when suddenly you mature in your attitudes toward home and employment. A good day for taking stock.

TAURUS (Apr. 21-May 21)—Contact with neighbors could well lead to exciting things careerwise. Don't hesitate to call on another for aid.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—A surprising and exciting day for the Gemini who follows his own lead into adventures of a family nature. Consider advice of children.

CANCER (June 22-July 23) — Today may well mark the beginning of an important phase in your partnership with another. Domestic or business, everything looks ahead.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Apply your keen intelligence to the problem of too many cooks. Discover the best way to weed out an excess of leaders.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) — Make certain your directives are understood before you presume to hold people to them. You may not be making yourself clear.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Exciting news should set this day apart as the one that opened a whole new outlook for you.

TOMORROW — Born today, you have extremely high ideals and will brook no compromise of behavior standards purely to achieve success or fortune. It was probably noticed by others even when you were a small child that you always took into consideration the feelings of others, for even then your determination never to hurt another consciously—or unconsciously if you could possibly avoid it—was apparent.

You have a great love of people in general and would go out of your way at any time or place to aid a person in need. You are not easily fooled, however, and it would be difficult for you to be talked into helping where help was not really needed or where such help as you could provide would be put to any wrong use. All the time that you are sympathetic to others, you also have a critical eye out for their worthiness.

One who enjoys probing into life's mysteries, the unknown holds no fear for you. On the other hand, you are intelligent enough not to risk life or limb to no purpose but experience; you want to be assured that some good will come of your sacrifice if you are called upon to make one. Otherwise, you will wisely refuse to commit yourself.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

MONDAY

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Take emotional benefits into consideration as you try to decide upon your next move. Not all assets are material.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—A day when you will definitely harvest according to what you sow. Don't be afraid to demand the best working conditions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)—Don't be alarmed should you suddenly seem to be failing in your purpose. A poor start does not necessarily mean a poor end.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—Don't let an argumentative relative or close friend cause you to give up on present plans. Go ahead according to your insights.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 21)—Concentrate on those things which are already a reality. To count your chickens before they hatch could lead to disappointment.

ARIES (Mar. 22-Apr. 20)—Take heed of another's warning should it have to do with the preservation of your reputation and public image.

TAURUS (Apr. 21-May 21) — Let practicality take the lead as you learn to conceal your emotional responses for the time being. A good day for the rational.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—Best to accomplish group goals rather than personal ones—at least for the present. Consider the needs of the many.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Look toward more favorable financial developments in the near future. Meantime, watch the budget and bide your time.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—A day when potential may well count for as much as those things already achieved. Mind your P's and Q's as you go about your business.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—Don't let unfavorable contacts with another lead you into a depressed state. Now is the time for looking ahead to better things.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Take up your own burdens even though others may offer to do your duty for you. Show what you're made of.

A pinchful or two of minced fresh herbs plus some sherry will do wonders for canned consomme. Slowly heat the consomme with the herbs (use parsley and chives if nothing else is on hand) and add the sherry off heat.

Day by Day

Thanksgiving Is Day For Tradition

By ESTHER GRAY

Mercury Society Editor

Wise grandmothers will not experiment with fancy stuffed loins of pork or other meats for Thanksgiving — else they may look in to very disappointed eyes of youngsters who expected turkey. It happened once at our house. Since then, that most American bird, turkey, has been the piece de resistance for the holiday feast.

It must be admitted there is nothing more handsome than a perfectly roasted turkey. It lends a festive air that is unmatched by other foods and is a production any cook can be proud of.

The Poultry and Egg National board suggests roasting the turkey unstuffed, especially if cooking a larger bird. It recommends choosing an 18 to 24 pound turkey, as this size has always been a good buy but promises to be more economical this year as the supply has increased.

Stuffing dumplings can be prepared during the last part of the turkey roasting period and cooked in simmering water on top of the stove. California raisin stuffing balls may be baked in foil while the turkey rests before carving.

DRY ROASTING

The poultry and egg board warns a turkey should be roasted in one continuous cooking period. Correct roasting is dry heat at low temperature, 325 degrees, which assures better flavor and appearance, less shrinkage and less loss of juices. It requires no searing, no basting and no cover.

A shallow pan with a rack at least one inch high raises the bird off the pan bottom, keeping it out of the juices and allowing the heat to circulate around the bird, roasting it evenly.

Place in shallow roasting pan breast side up. Brush skin with butter or fat. Place in preheated oven. If desired, brush occasionally with pan drippings or butter—especially any dry areas. When turkey is two thirds done, cut cord that ties the drumsticks to the tail to release the legs and permit heat to reach the heavy meated part. Cover with a loose tent of aluminum foil or lay a fat moistened cloth over the breast and legs to prevent excessive browning.

To test doneness a roast thermometer placed inside the thigh muscle or thickest part of breast muscle should register 185 degrees at the same time. If testing with the fingers, the thickest part of the drumstick should feel very soft.

Six to eight pound bird requires three to three and a half hours roasting time; eight to 12, three and a half to four and a half; 12 to 16, four and a half to five and a half; 16 to 20, five and a half to six and a half; 20 to 24, six and a half to seven.

STUFFING—DUMPLING STYLE

2½ quarts day-old bread cubes
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup minced parsley
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ cup hot milk
2 eggs, slightly beaten

Combine all ingredients except milk and eggs; toss to mix well. Pour hot milk over bread mixture. Stir mixture, cover and let stand five minutes. Add eggs and mix well. Shape into balls, using half cup of mixture for each ball. To cook the stuffing balls, place in simmering water in a large kettle and cover. Do not crowd the balls as they will expand slightly during cooking.

Serve with gravy made from turkey drippings. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

CALIFORNIA RAISIN STUFFING BALLS

Cook one cup finely chopped celery and half cup finely chopped onion in half cup butter until vegetables begin to soften. Add one cup California seedless raisins, half cup turkey broth and one teaspoon poultry seasoning. Combine with one fourth cup finely chopped parsley, half cup chopped pecans, one beaten egg and one (eight-ounce) package cornbread stuffing mix. Shape into eight balls.

Place a 12 x 24-inch length of foil on shallow baking pan. Arrange stuffing balls on one half. Cover loosely with other half and fold edges to seal. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) about 25 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

Family Topic Presented At Meeting

Michael Gorman, from Family Service of Montgomery county, showed slides and spoke on the topic, "Family In Focus," at the Doe club meeting Thursday night at the Elk home. Mrs. Charles Weller, president, presided.

Mr. Gorman related the service strengthens the family and keeps it together. It helps to create understanding of a problem that may exist between a man, wife or children, after a series of careful studies with each member of the family.

Mrs. Ross Gordon gave the opening prayer.

Mrs. Gerald Leighton, Mrs. Charles Slichter and Mrs. Francis Yonkovitch were initiated and welcomed as new members.

ANNUAL FETE

The annual Christmas dinner dance will take place Dec. 2 at the Elks home. Serving on the decorating committee will be Mrs. Richard Thompson and Mrs. John Kohler.

The next meeting will be Dec. 14 at the Elks home. A Christmas party will be featured with Santa Claus as special guest. Members will exchange gifts.

Prizes were won by Mrs. Lloyd Edris, Mrs. Wilbur Pittinger and Mrs. Lawrence Rath.

Fruits, Fall flowers and orange candles adorned the refreshment table. Pumpkin pie, coffee, tea and nuts were served by the hospitality committee, Mrs. William Bernhardt and Mrs. Francis Bachman.

Forty three members attended.

Christmas Shopping Hours Set

Christmas shopping hours and arrangements for the annual visit of Santa Claus sponsored by the Royersford Businessmen's association were discussed at its November dinner meeting at the Spring-Ford Country club.

Santa Claus will arrive Friday night, Dec. 1, and will visit stores and distribute candy and gifts. Business establishments will be open every weekday evening until 9, from Dec. 4 through 23.

George T. McKissic, president, who conducted the meeting, named the following to the nominating committe: Lewis Calcinore, chairman; Charles Lebow, Lester A. Horning, David J. Groff and Robert Oehlert.

Mayor James C. Sutton, Royersford druggist, reported 16 merchants are participating in the Thanksgiving promotion for the distribution of 16 turkey dinners for six persons. Awards will be made Tuesday, Nov. 21 at Jerry's Thriftway market, North Lewis and Royersford road.

Wilson Christman, vice president and program chairman, introduced William Studer, sales manager of the National Cash Register company, as the speaker. He discussed "Computer Recording and Reporting", tracing the history and growth of his company from it's beginning in 1880 to a multi-million dollar business, controlling 86 percent of the industry.

Chrysler Production Remains at Standstill

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. and the United Auto Workers Union went through the formality of signing a new contract Friday but the big auto firm's assembly lines remained virtually stilled.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther sounded a hopeful note when he told newsmen he thought there will be "relatively normal production at Chrysler by Monday."

Reuther and his top aides inked the new contract even as delegates to the Chrysler-UAW council, made up of representatives of Chrysler's 95,000 production workers, headed for Detroit and a scheduled routine approval of the contract Saturday.

TOUCHY PROBLEM

The touchy problem of local level agreements still remained a big question mark at Chrysler. At midday Friday, a Chrysler official said 34 of the 60 bargaining units representing production workers had settled while 43 of the 76 units representing clerical or white collar workers had reached agreement on their local problems.

Reuther said as he headed into the Chrysler bargaining room Friday that he would devote his attention now to working out a contract for the 8,000 salaried Chrysler workers who are represented by the UAW.

He indicated belief progress was being made but said that if it is not wrapped up by Monday, the UAW then will set a new strike deadline for salaried workers units.

About 37,000 Chrysler workers were off the jobs Friday as a result of local strikes, parts shortages or layoffs for one reason or another. The firm reportedly built less than 1,000 cars Friday, compared with its scheduled output of about 7,000 vehicles.

A Thought for the Day

J. Robert Stone, Director E. Earl Nelson, Director

Veteran's Day, November 11, has changed in meaning and symbol. Once known as Armistice Day in commemoration of cessation of World War 1, the day is celebrated now to honor present and ex-service men. Ironically, perhaps this change is for the best, because the hopes that brought on Armistice Day in the begining, have for the most part, been unfulfilled. We see this clearly as our military men are stationed around the world trying to defend the unfulfilled hopes of Armistice Day.

Veteran's Day is a time to honor the millions of men and women who served, and are serving our country. Nothing we can say can add to the honor they deserve . . . We hope Veteran's Day turns out to be a time for prayer for peace with honor for all people throughout the world.

Planning a Move? It's Not So Hard!

By BILL MARCH
(Mercury Staff Writer)

Just what are the keys to sucessful moving?

According to local moving men, the right keys will open doors to ways of saving time, trouble and most important of all — money!

It's your move — so why not make sure that it's a move in the right direction.

To the majority of the people, moving is an important time in their lives.

It represents the challenge of change, and in some instances, broader opportunities.

It is also a time for making new friends. But it means departing from old friends and neighbors, an established community and for some people, a way of life.

MAKE IT RIGHT

During this time of confusion and mixed emotions, you most certainly want your moving trip to go right.

And the best way to make sure of this is to know what you are going to do well ahead of time, with whom you are dealing, know what to expect and to know what you can do to make sure your moving excursion is the best possible.

A number of suggestions and advice to help you understand all the important factors that make up a moving trip were recommended by David A. Yergey, manager of Yergey's Moving and Storage company, 760 Spruce street.

"A good system of planning is most important. Notify your mover as far in advance as possible as to your desired moving date," Yergey said.

He suggested that movers start preparing their family and household items for the move well in advance. Decide which goods you are going to move . . . which you are going to sell or give away.

Dont' forget, it might cost more to move an old obsolete piece of junk than the item is actually worth.

Moving time is a great time to clean up . . . so why not take advantage of it?

GIVE THINGS AWAY

Consider giving the items you do not wish to move to the Salvation Army or some other group of charity.

When in doubt about whether to move a certain bulky item, Yergey advises, consult your moving agent. He can give you an estimate on the cost of moving it and you can decide whether to move it or replace it at your new home.

Yergey suggests that the needs of the family should be anticipated on the moving day. A light, easily prepared meal is recommended.

It's also a good idea to put aside everything you will need for the first night in your new home—such as bedding, coffee maker, towels, soap, etc.

Most moving firms will provide a special carton for these "first night" items.

"As a whole, most of our customers are prepared well in advance to move. And more so on local moving trips than long distance, they pack as much as possible themselves," Yergey explained.

"But we also will do the packing if notified ahead of time," he said.

OPTIONAL

"The packing and unpacking of the goods is an optional service we provide, and we can handle all or part of it for the customer. All charges made by the mover for packing are based upon specified tariff charges prescribed by the Tri-State Household Goods Tariff incorporated," Yergey said.

These rates include packing, the use of special packing containers and materials from origin to destination, and unpacking.

Yergey said, "We don't bid for jobs, all charges are by weight and mileage as prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission."

"So the actual moving charges are compiled as to the actual weight. This means the exact move cannot be totalled until the exact moving day," he explained.

Yergey warned that it is very important to know what you want to ship, because the estimate made by the movers is not always correct.

"Carriers cannot determine precisely what the move will cost until all packing is completed and the goods are loaded on a truck and weighed," said Yergey.

SPECIAL TREATMENT

When it comes to preparing articles for shipment, Yergey says, items such as stoves, refrigerators, and washing machines may require disconnection and usually require special servicing to protect their mechanisms during movement.

You should arrange to take down all blinds, draperies, window cornices, mirrors, and other items attached to the walls and also to take up carpets which are tacked down.

And under no circumstances should you pack jewelry, money, or valuable papers with your other belongings, or pack any matches, inflamables, or other dangerous articles.

Most articles should be packed in barrels, crates or cartons so that they can be handled easily and safely.

Most movers supply wardrobes for garments. But there is a charge per container for these services.

NOT RESPONSIBLE

However, if you decide to do your own packing, the moving company is not responsible for damage resulting from faulty packing you perform.

The carrier will unpack containers it has packed, if you wish, but not those that you have packed.

What are some of the other things that should be taken care of before that eventful day arrives?

What about services that should be discontinued?

Yergey suggests the following tips:

- ● Electric company (any refund?)
- ● Gas company (any refund?)

PERKING UP

According to Yergey the moving business is really "perking up" these days.

May to September—once the peak period when moving firms reaped a landslide business while sort of taking it easy for the other months of the year—no longer are able to share that distinction.

The population is forever increasing, and spreading out, as new homes, housing developments and apartment projects in the Pottstown area open up.

Consequently, the moving business is really on the move!

The moving men in Pottstown, who have spent years in the business, point out that there doesn't seem to be any "season" for those who wish to find new quarters. Most families intending to relocate do so at their earliest opportunity.

Yergey pointed out, "We are booked solid for two weeks in advance and its been that way all year long. There just doesn't seem to be any letup at all".

While the business has been active most of the year, Yergey acknowledged that the tempo picks up at the beginning and end of school terms.

BUSY SUMMERS

"Most of the Summer is very busy," Yergey explained, "because most of the people try to move during their vacation to save time and money and also to benefit their children."

Most people want to be settled before they send their children off to school," he remarked.

Also, Yergey credited the moving business boom to the rise of housing developments and apartment projects in the Pottstown area.

Yergey observed that "people change their residence largely to improve their standard of living. As salaries and wages increase, families move to better homes."

Consequently, Pottstown's housing expansion, apartments and new homes have become available to families at all wage levels, creating a continuous chain of circumstances in which home-seekers scramble for quarters.

Probably another factor responsible for the increased hauling and moving is that many of moves are paid for by companies.

"More and more companies are assuming the cost for their employes. It sort of enhances the move for an employe who is being transfered," Yergey said.

So all in all, no matter which end you're on, the moving firm or the family that's moving, everybody seems to be reaping "a van load" of benefits.

That is, provided you move in the right direction.

It's No Bed, But It Will Do

After playing several strenuous games of cowboys and Indians, and at least one game of hide and seek this Pottstown tot was just all worn out. So he simply curled up on the first flight of steps he came to and caught a much needed 40 winks. When his short nap was over, he was off in a flash to resume his childhood games. Gala Christmas Parade Scheduled for Nov. 24

The annual Pottstown Christmas parade is planned to spark off Christmas cheer and continue the good feeling generated during the upcoming holidays.

The parade will begin at 9 a.m., Nov. 24, the day after Thanksgiving, and will proceed east on High street from Manatawny to Adams streets.

Pottstown police will start the march, escorting the parade marshal, Edward L. Plowfield, and his aides, Kenneth Burk and William Stetler.

SNOW WHITE

The Pottstown Senior High school band will provide music for the police and they will be followed by Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, played by members of the Pottstown Senior High school Key Club. The dwarfs will carry lanterns and display other dwarf regalia.

Keeping the dwarfs especially Sleepy, moving, will be a troop of toy soldiers brought to life by the Pottstown Jaycees, and the Central Junior High school band will keep the soldiers in step.

A circus unit of 20 clowns, all Jaycees, will give balloons and lollipops to children along the way. They will accompany fellow Jaycees dressed as a bear, lion, tiger, and, to round things off, a pink elephant.

The Pottsgrove Senior High school band will set the tempo again, followed by an Indian family. The YMCA Indian guides will portray the chief, his son, and daughter.

CHILDREN'S CLASSICS

The Lincoln school PTA will have a float showing scenes from children's classics. This will be followed by the Owen J. Roberts Junior High school band.

The YMCA girl's gym class will provide a spectacle of gymnastic clowns winning their way into Pottstown's heart with exciting acrobatic feats.

A highly disciplined and courageous troop of Keystone cops will do their best to escort a gorilla along the parade route.

The Northern Junior High band will herald the coming of Santa Claus on a dog sled drawn by a pack of husky sturdies, or sturdy huskies.

Since Santa's sled will be drawn by dogs, it won't be surprising to see a tearful Rudolf following along behind with his nose an even brighter red from sniffling.

Eight prancing elves will dance about in an effort to cheer him up.

The Owen J. Roberts Senior High school band will demonstrate its virtuosity, followed by the pony that will be given away to some lucky child.

The rear will be brought up by several pieces of fire equipment.

ANIMAL BALLOONS

The celebrity of the day will be Willie the Clown, who will hand out autographed pictures and give away free animal balloons. After the parade he will visit the hospitals to brighten the season for sick children.

But the day won't be over when the parade ends.

Children may visit the "World's biggest little traveling circus" and feel the nostalgia of an old time circus parade captured in a miniature display.

They will see exotic wild animals, the brash brass band, and the colorful calliope, in a trailer parked near Santa's workshop at Penn and High streets.

The little big top features a three ring show.

Police Quizzes Get Underway

A three man panel began interviewing the 15 candidates for Pottstown's top police position Friday.

The examinations were given in borough hall by a panel consisting of a police chief from a large eastern city, a chief of police from a Pennsylvania borough not near Pottstown, and Forbes E. McCann, head of McCann associates.

McCann associates is a Philadelphia firm hired for the recruitment and testing of police executives.

In all, 15 are slated for the oral examinations which began Friday and continue today in the borough council chambers.

SECOND STEP

The oral exams are the second step in a three phase elimination process to come up with a police chief.

Tomorrow afternoon Pottstown borough council will interview three applicants who were certified as "best qualified" as a result of the oral interview.

On Monday night, during its regular November meeting, council will appoint one of the three chief of police.

HARD QUESTIONS

While most of the candidates undergoing the oral exams on Friday were in general agreement that the questions asked were difficult, they wouldn't reveal what those questions were.

Some of the applicants who are taking the oral exam arrived in Pottstown Thursday night, and the rest on Friday.

They have been given accommodations in local motels while they are waiting outcome of the testing program.

While here they are being given guided tours of the police station, including the radio room, photographic dark room and records section, and the residential, recreational, shopping and educational areas in the borough.

The 15 applicants taking the interviews are all that remain from a field of 40 original candidates several weeks ago.

On Saturday, Oct. 21, written examinations were conducted for all candidates. Only those who surpassed a pre-selected score were invited for the interviews.

RESIGNATION

Touching off the series of tests dsigned to make one man chief was the July 28 resignation of former chief Milton D. Hooper.

Hooper, who was head of the Pottstown police department for three years, left to become superintendent of police in Roanoke, Va.

He was selected chief of Pottstown police through a testing procedure, was handled by McCann associates.

On the eve of Hooper's departure, Capt. Thomas A. Lawler, a 25 year veteran with the police force, was named acting chief.

He served in that capacity until his retirement, Oct. 31.

Sgt. Michael Shanta is the current acting chief.

Nine Apply For Shot at Captaincy

Nine promotion-minded members of the Pottstown police department have submitted applications for a captain of police vacancy now existing.

Noon Friday was the deadline for returning applications, and Borough Secretary William Shaeffer said three sergeants and six patrolmen completed them before the deadline.

Applicants are Robert Corrigan, Fred Hummel and Lloyd Meyers, all sergeants, and Patrolmen Gerald Worrall, Woodrow Edinger, Richard Bigelow, Linwood Youse, George Geiger and John J. Moore.

WRITTEN EXAM

The nine will be competing in a written examination which will be given by the Pottstown Civil Service commission Tuesday, and interviews set for next Saturday.

The testing is to fill a post formerly held by Thomas A. Lawler, who was elevated to acting police chief and who retired at the end of October.

To qualify for the written exams the applicants met these requirements:

—At least four years service with the Pottstown police department, computed from the expiration of the probationary period.

—Satisfactory completion of all in-service and out-service training programs to which assigned.

—Demonstrated ability to carry out orders from superiors.

—A working knowledge of police science and administration.

—At least a satisfactory grade on his latest performance rating.

RECOMMENDATION

After the combined results of the written exams and the oral interviews are computed the Civil Service commission will recommend three applicants to borough council at qualified.

It is believed council then will schedule a special meeting, before the end of the month, and name one of the qualified three captain.

It is possible the captain would assume active command of the police department.

A new chief of police is to be appointed during Monday's meeting of borough council.

WORK NOTICE

In the event the appointee is from another state or police department he may have to work a notice for his present employer. That notice may run past the starting time for the captain, and the new captain then would head the department until the arrival of the new chief.

Currently Sgt. Michael Shanta is serving as acting police chief.

A spokesman for the Civil Service commission said earlier that the written examination for the captain's post may be obtained from McCann associates, a Philadelphia firm engaged in recruiting and testing police executives.

It is the McCann firm that is conducting the examinations for the chief.

The captain's examination will carry 70 points for the outcome of the written portion, 10 points for the oral portion, and 20 points will be based upon evaluation of the service ratings of performance records of the applicants.

3 'Pagans' Arrested In Barroom Shooting

Three members of "The Pagans," this area's imitation of the notorious "Hell's Angels" motorcycle club in California, have been arrested by State police for a barroom brawl in Rahns on Oct. 28 where a man was shot.

State police from the Schwenksville barracks said they made the arrests in cooperation with Hatfield borough Police Chief Herbert Krider and Norristown detectives.

Arraigned before Limerick Justice of the Peace Frank M. Evans were Robert Harold Medford, 20, and Carl Lund, 22, both of Hatfield, and Richard Smith, 21, Norristown.

$2000 BAIL

Medford was committed to the Montgomery county prison in default of $2000 bail on charges of pointing a deadly weapon, assault and battery with intent to kill, and attempts with intent to kill.

Lund and Smith, who reportedly took part in the fight but not the shooting, were charged with disorderly conduct.

Police said Lund pleaded guilty to the charge and paid a fine while Smith was committed to the county prison in lieu of bail.

According to police, the three defendants are either members or prospective members of a motorcycle club that paterns itself after the "Hell's Angels."

FIGHT IN BAR

The shooting incident was touched off by a fight in the bar room of the Rahns hotel, Routes 29 and 113, in the early morning hours of Saturday, Oct. 28.

Raymond Kelso, 24, Meadow road, Yerkes, an employe of Firestone Tire and Rubber company, was shot in the shoulder.

State police said a quarrel broke out in the hotel barroom between two men, and it moved outside to a porch. One of the men produced a .22 caliber pistol and began shooting.

Kelso also was on the porch and was hit by a stray bullet. Police were told Kelso was trying to break up the fight.

The victim was taken to Phoenixville hospital where he was treated for the wound and released later in the day.

Speed Campaign Slated by Police

Pottstown police figure there's too much speeding being done through school zones, and they have announced a crackdown to spur safety in these areas.

The formula is simple addition and subtraction:

Add points to their drivers' licenses, and subtract money from their pockets, through fines.

Patrolman James E. Rodgers, the borough's safety officer, announced the renewed efforts to cut down on speeding near borough schools while children are going to or coming from the facilities.

15 MPH

He said the law requires motorists to slow down to 15 miles per hour when driving near schools that have pupils entering or leaving.

"But too many people don't pay too much attention to this law," said Rodgers.

He added that he and other officers on the Pottstown police department have been issuing frequent warnings to motorists caught exceeding this 15 mile per hour speed limit, but it has done nothing to reduce the violations.

STRONGER MEASURES

So, he said, we will have to take stronger measures.

At some of the schools traffic guides will be placing cones in the middle of the roadway when pupils are going or coming.

The cones are painted a bright yellow, and have red flags on top. Around the sides of the cones is lettering citing the 15 mile per hour speed limit.

"These cones will warn motorists they had better cut speed," Rodgers continued, "and if they don't they will be arrested and charged with the violation.

The Motor Vehicle code calls for a fine of $10 to be imposed on violators of speed restrictions in school zones, and $5 costs.

POINTS ASSESSED

Possibly the strongest punishment, Rodgers said, isn't the fine, but the points which are charged against the offender's driver's license.

Under the State's point system for driving violations a hefty five points are placed against the driver's license for exceeding the limit in a school zone.

Only six points are required before the license is suspended or its holder is ordered to attend a driver retraining school.

Rodgers said the cones are gradually being placed at various locations near schools around the borough.

2 SCHOOLS

At the moment they are on Beech street near the Jefferson Elementary school, and at Hanover and Oak streets for the Lincoln Elementary school.

The safety officer cautioned motorists that just because there are no cones near a school doesn't mean they don't have to observe the speed limit.

"Everyone knows where the schools are, and at what times children are arriving and leaving. The burden is on the motorist to drive accordingly," Rodgers said.

Stowe Man Fined For Drunk Driving

Fines totaling $350 were imposed on Nicholas Koren, 218 Fairview street, Stowe, after he pleaded guilty before Montgomery County Judge William W. Vogel to charges of driving while intoxicated and failing to stop at an accident scene.

Koren, who was arrested Oct. 28 after an accident on North Charlotte street, was fined $250 for the drunken driving charge and $100 on the hit-run count.

He was arrested by Patrolman John J. Durkin, who said Koren failed to stop after his auto hit a car driven by Larry Remich Jr., 841 North Hanover street, as the defendant drove north on Charlotte street.

Council Sets Hearing on High Rise

Two items of major importance to Pottstown will be aired at Monday night's session of borough council, set to begin at 7:30 p. m.

One will be a public hearing on a proposed zoning change for a 13 story, $2½ million high rise apartment building at King and Charlotte streets.

The other item will be naming of a police chief.

Before any change can be made in the borough's zoning ordinance a hearing must be held to give the public an opportunity to voice its views on the change.

POTTSTOWN'S TALLEST

Currently there is no provision in the zoning law which would permit erection of the structure. If constructed it will become Pottstown's tallest building.

Scheduled to be erected on the southwest corner of Charlotte and King streets, the building will contain four floors of parking. Two of the floors will be for public use, and two for use of the tenants in the [illegible] apartment units.

Lining the outer edges of the building on the ground floor will be specialty shops dealing in assorted merchandise.

Preps Seek Win At Homecoming

Perkiomen school will have a lot at stake this afternoon when the Preps host Solebury at 2:30.

A win will assure the forces of Coach Craigin a winning season, but that is only one of the targets the Preps will be shooting for.

Revenge enters into the picture, as Perkiomen will be trying to avenge its only loss of the season last year, plus the fact that it will be homecoming at the Pennsburg prep school, and a large turnout of classmates, alumni and friends will be on hand to see the game.

The Preps also will pay tribute to a famed alumnus, John F. Orsi, a graduate of the class of 1928, who is celebrating his 35th anniversary since being named an All-American end on the 1932 Colgate university squad.

PAY RESPECTS

Headmaster Andrew B. Berky will preside at the halftime activities and several persons who have been affiliated with Perkiomen Prep and Orsi will be called upon to pay their respects to the school's distinguished All-American.

Included in this group will be Andrew Kerr, who coached Orsi at Colgate, and is now eastern representative of the East-West Shrine football game; Frederick Peiffer, coach of the 1927 Perkiomen championship team on which Orsi played end; Lloyd S. Schultz, president of the board of trustees of Perkiomen school, and Herschel Mosier, former alumni secretary at Colgate university.

Many of Orsi's teammates at Perkiomen and Colgate have indicated they will be on hand for the ceremonies.

Coach Craigin will have his own work cut out for he and his team however, as he tries to bolster the ranks of his injury plagued team, which has won three, lost two and tied one this season.

CASUALTY LIST

Latest on the list of casualties includes starting right tackle Blair Coleman and his replacement Bill Timmerman.

"This has been an unusual year," Coach Craigin said. "We've been hit so hard in the line with injuries that we have had to move backs up to fill the gaps."

Statistics don't lie and of the 49 players on the Preps' active roster, 28 will dress for today's game, and three of them haven't practiced all week, nursing injuries.

One bright spot on the Preps' horizon is that Bill Weinschenk, the team's leading ground gainer, may be back in the lineup. Weinschenk has been sidelined for two weeks, and will be dressed today.

"We may not start Bill," Craigin stated. "It all depends on the game situation. I'd like to use him though, but we'll have to wait and see."

REBUILDING

Solebury had a powerhouse last season, but this year the Prep's top rival is undergoing a rebuilding program, and has yet to win a game.

"This is the weakest team I remember Solebury having," Craign said, "but they're young and inexperienced. We can't afford to take them lightly though.

"I think our boys will be up for this one, with the big crowd, and the fact that some of them were on the team which lost to Solebury last season."

The starting offensive lineup for the Preps will include: Ends, John Gambol and Bob Thorn; tackles, Bob Maerz and John Roger; guards, Bob Post and Steve McDougal and center, John Cleaver.

The backfield will consist of quarterback Dave Getz, fullback Bob Bucher, halfback Art Bridenstine and flanker back Bob Pumphrey.

Winged Lions Seek 7th Win Tomorrow at Home

Being number one is becoming a habit at St. Pius X, and Coach Jim Mich hopes its a habit which is hard to break.

Last week the idle Winged Lions moved into a tie for first place among the area teams, and tomorrow afternoon at 2 Pius will attempt to hold onto that top rung when it hosts Archbishop Ryan.

The game will be the final home appearance of the season of the Lions, who have won six of seven games this season, their only defeat a 7-6 heartbreaker to Lansdale Catholic.

Last season Pius had the only unbeaten record in the area, 8-0-1, and the Blue and Gold could finish no worse than tied for first, providing they win tomorrow and can fashion a victory on Thanksgiving at Pottsgrove.

WINNING SEASON

The Mich men have already assured themselves of a winning campaign, the seventh in Coach Mich's eight year at the helm and a victory over Ryan would be number four in their latest streak.

Last year the Winged Lions rode to the top with the most explosive offense around, but this year the story has been defense. The Lions lead area teams in least number of points scored, despite the fact that Coach Mich has eight juniors on his starting defensive platoon.

The offense hasn't been exactly no existant either, as the Lions have been able to generate a consistant attack, led by converted quarterback Bob Fisher, the team's leading ground gainer.

Fisher is a double threat, and his running often overshadows his fine passing arm. Backing him up are three fine running backs, John Farenish, John Mack and Bernie Luppachini.

Fisher's leading receivers this year have been Farenish and end Frank Sierzega.

Pro Players Blocking Our View, Fan Claims

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A St. Louis police sergeant has sided with the complaint of Baltimore comptroller Hyman A. Pressman about pro football players standing and blocking the view of spectators.

At the Green Bay Packers-Baltimore Colts game last Sunday, Pressman vaulted the railing and plucked at the sleeve of Packer Coach Vince Lombardi, asking him to seat his players who were standing at their bench. Pressman said he got no satisfaction.

Friday, the comptroller made public a letter to him in which police Sgt. Leonard H. Ballman of St. Louis said, "I am glad to see that I am not the only one bothered."

"I wrote to the National Football League office about that before the season started, as we have the same problem in St. Louis," said Ballman.

"They gave me the usual brushoff letter telling about the players' enthusiasm, and the lack of seating facilities for the players in stadiums built primarily for baseball, etc."

Bears Place Phillips On Injured List

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bears placed Loyd Phillips, a defensive end, on the injured list today.

Phillips has a leg injury. He didn't play in the Bears' National Football League game against Detroit last Sunday. Putting him on the list means he will be out for four more games.

Marauder Backer Informs Fans

To the Editor: Personal thanks to you for your apparent concern for the accurate reporting of news and views, both nationally and locally, that has become increasingly more evident with every issue of your newspaper; and salutations to your fine staff, for the exceptional manner in which they creatively approach the writing of articles.

I am sure most Pottstonians share my views concerning your newspaper's new approach, for it offers each of us the opportunity to voice our opinions in rebuttle.

Your newly formed "Democracy Flavored" philosophy has not only increased your popularity amongst local readers, it has in some instance, even influenced the actions of the afore mentioned public. Let me site an example:

The average attendance at the four home games of the Spring-Ford Marauders, before last Saturday night, was 2,400. On October 23, an editorial was printed in your paper concerning some unfortunate incident that occurred during the game.

On November 4, the Marauders played their toughest opponent, Ridley Township A.C., who was undefeated and as in every previous game, half-time entertainment was provided in the form of the Owen J. Roberts Jr. High Band. Net result—a 350 paid attendance.

The facutal statements on attendance are accurate. As for the assumption between poor attendance at our game with Riddley and your editorial, this may best be decided by your reader.

My purpose in writing is not to challenge your editorial or the person who wrote it, or even the fact that it may have been responsible for our poor attendance. My purpose is of the informative nature.

I feel it extremely important to mention to all the "I told you soers" that miraculously there were no fights in the game between Ridley and the Marauders. To complicate matters for those who are quick to pass judgement, there was not one single player thrown out of the game.

However, all is not lost. Some food for the fire and brimstoners may be the fact that 11 penalties were called, and seven of those against the Marauders. And to add insult to the injury, two of those were personal fouls—roughing the passer, and a face-mask tackle (throw them out of the league).

On the unpopular side, those 950 fans witnessed seven touchdowns, a 95 yard kick-off return, a 68 yard run from scrimmage, 23 pass attempts, a defensive first-half and without concern for editorials, the players shaking hands after the game.

Unfortunately for us, there were no Medal of Honor winners or other dignataries present, or even an editorial written by the sports writer who witnessed the game.

In closing, I would like to draw one more comparison. In 11 football games, only one involved the delay of the game due to "fighting." Make no mistake, in a few other games, home and away, players from both teams became irritated, and due to the prompt action of game officials and our coaching staff, play was not delayed. It would be an injustice to our fans if I would say we have never lost a player. We have lost seven players this year other than the game on October 21, and each player has been reprimanded, and in extreme cases, fined. We offer no excuses, only another example.

On Sunday, Nov. 5, on national TV, players of the Philadelphia Eagles and the New Orleans Saints began throwing punches. According to your editorial, this was damaging to America's youth, and helped destroy the image of the National Football League.

I do not expect an editorial about the Eagles game, nor do I expect that many fans will stay away from the next Eagles home game.

I doubt if an editorial will appear in any newspaper in the United States. I also doubt that a fan somewhere said that he would not take his child to the next game or that sports editors will cry for a shake-up in the National Football League. I am somewhat certain, though, that no further mention will be made of the Eagles-Saints incident—in your paper, in Philadelphia, or in New Orleans.

If readers will please recall, there were fine articles that appeared in your newspaper in July and August seeking support for our worthwhile cause.

I would like to reassure you at this time, that our basic aims are still firm. Our approach to organization has, as a matter of fact, improved and we are striving for better officials to help us control our games.

We again seek your support, for we intend to continue to provide half-time entertainment, good facilities, and "hard nose" football to local fans for our remaining two home games.

Houston Cougars Risk Ranking Against Memphis State

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Cougars, back again among the nation's Top Ten, will be strong favorites Saturday night when meeting a Memphis State team that shattered their hopes for a national ranking a year ago.

Houston is so heavily favored the oddsmakers are listing no points, but the Cougars have sad memories from a similar situation in 1966.

A year ago an unloving Memphis team moved into the Astrodome to challenge the 7-1 Cougars and departed with a 14-13 upset that destroyed Houston's hopes of climbing among the Top Ten the first time in history.

An overflow crowd of about 50,000 is expected to see Houston go after its first victory in three starts against the Tigers.

The teams have met three common opponents. Houston opened its season with a 33-13 victory over Florida State, a team that whipped the Tigers last week 27-6. Houston swamped Wake Forest 50-6, and Memphis State beat the North Carolina team, 43-16. State beat Mississippi 27-17 in a season opener, but Houston lost to the Rebels 14-13.

The loss to Ole Miss two weeks ago knocked Houston out of the Top Ten, but the Cougars came back last Saturday to take a 15-14 thriller from fifth-ranked Georgia before a record Astrodome crowd in excess of 52,000.

Coach Bill Yeoman has cautioned his explosive Cougars that Memphis State has an identical 5-2 season record and is in an excellent position to pull another upset.

"They lost only a player or two from the team that beat us a year ago," Yeoman said.

Cats Hope to Stay In Loop Scramble

This afternoon's game between Pottsgrove High and Owen J. Roberts High at Bucktown will be an important one for both clubs, but for different reasons.

The Wildcats, under Coach Hank Bernat, are hoping to stay alive in the Ches-Mont league race after falling from their lead and unbeaten ranks in a 22-14 setback to West Chester, while the Falcons, under Coach Ken Harclerode, are hoping to win their two final games and close the season at a .500 level.

Other Ches-Mont action has Pottstown High at Spring-Ford in the loop's only night tilt, Boyertown at Great Valley and Phoenixville at Coatesville, while Downingtown hosts West Chester in a clash for the circuit's top spot.

Bernat's forces, who weren't expected to be in title contention at the start of the season, have been crippled with injuries to key players, and last week's loss to the front-running Warriors added to the Wildcats woes.

LIST GROWS

Two more joined the injury list, in linemen John Welsh and Bob Wilson, but there's a possibility of return by star halfback Colin Collins, idled for several weeks.

The Cats have a 5-1-1 league record, and 6-1-1 overall, and have been the surprise of the circuit. Reviewing his team's success, Bernat said "We knew we had a good offense at the beginning of the year, but the question mark was our defense."

That defense was largely responsible in several of the Cats triumphs, before suffering a letdown last week.

Don Strock, who was brilliant even in defeat, will quarterback the Cats, while Collins, Charley Nesley, Rick McCalicher and Mike Barth figure to see backfield duty as well.

BOLSTERS ATTACK

Collins return will greatly bolster the Cats ground attack, which has placed more pressure on Strock's aerial attack in recent weeks. Strock's prime targets will be Frank Sombers and Mike Barth.

Falcon Coach Harclerode sees the tilt as "an important game" because of hopes for a .500 season.

"We've been trying to win any and every game we can," he said, adding that the team's slow start was somewhat disappointing.

However, the Falcons have won two of their last three games with the other decision being a tie that could well have been a triumph.

Their record is 2-4-2, and today's clash at Bucktown closes out their league season, with a non-league battle Thanksgiving Day.

KEY FIGURE

John James is a key figure in the Falcon backfield, handling most of the running chores. Terry Neiman is the quarterback, Mike Kozel a halfback and anyone of three others will fill the remaining backfield spot. They are Rich Kern, Darryl Daisey and Dennis Cotton.

Pottstown Coach John Shoenwolf expects a "tough game" at Spring-Ford, which is seeking its first victory.

The Trojans have hopes of boosting their 3-3-1 league mark over .500 tonight with a chance of moving into fourth place. The Trojan pass defense, according to Shoenwolf, has had a letup in each of the last two games, both of which they won.

DEFENSIVE WORK

We've worked on this and hope to use the same kind of attack as in our previous games, but we added a few things that we hope to take advantage of,' he continued.

The Trojan quarterback is Jim Borgiet, who's become the top place-kicker in the area. Jeff Jackowski and Jim Tsakonas will share running duty, while flanker Bob Repko fills out the backfield.

Ram Coach Merle Bainbridge has also been hit with an injury jinx, losing some five players.

Recent injuries have been to Don Shaner and Dave Smith, both fine pass receivers and both out with broken arms, and back George Landis, who hurt his knee.

"We figure we'll have to concentrate on Jackowski and Tsakonas, who I feel are the two finest backs in the league, but we'll need a total overall defensive effort against them."

EIGHT LOSSES

The Rams, with eight losses this season and seven in the league, are seeking to end a two-year victory drouth, but are greatly improved over the season's start.

Boyertown will gun for its fifth triumph of the year, visiting the Patriots, who are 2-4-1.

The Bears are hoping to rebound from a shellacking at the hands of Downingtown, and will count on Randy Wynings to carry a major part of the load.

Bill Hart will direct the Bears from his quarterback post, with Mike Sabrick as the other running back.

Phoenixville will strive toward a 4-4 log in its journey to Coatesville, which has a 2-5-0 slate.

The Phantoms, defending champs, will have their attack centered around brilliant halfback Neal Saunders and the passing of field general Charlie Kopp.

Boone to Wrap Up Grid Season At W. Reading

Daniel Boone High may not have repeated as Inter-County league champion this season, but the fall wasn't a big one.

The Blazers, depending on the outcome of tonight's clash at West Reading, can tie for second in the circuit, with Collegeville-Trappe, which will visit Wyomissing this afternoon.

The Blazers are 5-3 on the season, losing last week to unbeaten and newly crowned champ Exeter, and will conclude their schedule at Reading's Municipal stadium this evening.

POTENT OFFENSE

Coach Al Brazinsky's offense has displayed a powerful attack all season long, as in a 40-12 victory of West Reading earlier in the season.

Denny Iezzi will quarterback the Blazers, while Dean Marstellar, Les Wagner and Bob Neyer fill out the backfield.

Elsewhere, the Colonels will hope to end their season on a winning note, against Wyomissing. In a previous encounter this season, the Colonels drubbed the Cowboys 26-6.

A triumph this afternoon would give the Colonels their seventh win against two setbacks for the campaign.

The Colonels also possess a fine attack, headed by the running of the area's leading scorer, Jerry Hunsicker.

Hunsicker will handle most of the running assignments, with Dave Crews and Guy Van-Alstine also slated for duty, while Bill Burychka fills the quarterback slot.

Burychka's passing gives the Colonels a balanced offense, and the signal caller also takes care of the place-kicking chores.

NHL Expansion Teams Produce

NEW YORK (AP) — Citing the seven victories and one tie by West Division teams against those in the established East Division, president Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said Friday "the performances of the new teams have been much superior to what was expected.

Campbell also said he was pleased with the overall home attendance figures of the six new clubs during the first month of expansion. The season started Oct. 11.

"There are a couple of soft ones," Campbell noted, "but their problems will be ironed out."

Campbell disclosed that the average home attendance of West Division teams through Oct. 31 was 6,120 with a high average of 11,200 for the Minnesota North Stars and a low of 3,700 for Oakland, which recently changed its team's name from California.

St. Louis averaged 6,651, Pittsburgh 5,605, Philadelphia 5,494 and Los Angeles 4,649 during that time.

In recent seasons, the league which encompassed only teams in Montreal, Toronto, Boston, New York, Chicago and Detroit, drew between 90 to 95 per cent of capacity.

"Everyone of the new clubs has improved since Nov. 1," Campbell emphasized in a telephone interview.

"Oakland has had some problems arising out of an uncertainty of policy," the NHL president continued.

"They started out to orient themselves to San Francisco. Then, they shifted to California and this was not acceptable to either San Francisco or Oakland. "I did not expect either Philadelphia or Pittsburgh to do any better at this point because of the basic concentrated interest in high school, college and professional football in those areas." Through Thursday night, each of the established teams, except the New York Rangers, had been beaten at least once by the West. Twenty-five inter-division games have been played.

"The new clubs have many marginal players, those who in previous years moved up and down between the minors and the majors. They became discouraged also moving their wives and families," Campbell explained.

"There were also a high number of one-way contracts," he added. The players said to themselves, 'why should I work that hard. I can't get more money if I stay up there.' Now, they still have the same skills but a different spirit."

Campbell said he did not think the new teams will be quite as effective against the old in the next round of inter-divisional play. All of the West teams play two games each against East Division clubs.

"However, I had set the target date for the new clubs being on a par with the old as 1971," he stressed. "Now, I think it'll be 1970."

Shikellamy Wins Title 3-0 Over Mount Carmel

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa. (AP) — Shikellamy High School, playing a great defensive game, defeated Mount Carmel, 3-0, Friday night to win the southern division title of the Eastern Pennsylvania Football League.

Shikellamy won its eighth straight game of the season, and the third consecutive title, on a 28-yard field goal by Charles Smeltz in the second quarter.

For Mount Carmel, it was the first loss in nine games.

Nearly 10,000 persons, the biggest crowd in Mount Carmel's history, packed the Silver Bowl to see the contest.

Shikellamy will meet the northern division champion, which should be Pittston Area, for the conference title on Dec. 2.

Baltimore, Los Angeles Picked to Keep Winning

NEW YORK (AP) — Curse you, Red Baron. The friendly pro football picker knows you were behind last week's on-side kicks, interceptions and fumbles that reduced an obviously perfect set of predictions to a mediocre 6-6 record.

Well, you won't get away with it, Red Baron. Like good ol' Charley Brown, the pro picker rolls with the punches. And he promises to shoot you out of the sky this Sunday.

Not only that, Red Baron, but he'll do it with underdogs, like Denver whipping Houston to break an 8-game American League losing streak and New York to halt Chicago in the National League.

That's right, the Broncos over the Oilers and the Giants over the Bears. Good grief, the Baron's flak must be getting to our hero.

The season's log reads 57-31 for .648. This week's picks, with all games Sunday:

AFL

New York 24, Buffalo 7 — The Jet defense will bounce back from last Sunday's drubbing against Kansas City. Matt Snell expected back, replacing injured Emerson Boozer for New York. Bills are hurting with Jack Kemp, Keith Lincoln and others nursing assorted bruises.

Denver 17, Houston 7 — The Oilers still can't score and the Broncos may be ready to cash in on some of that preseason promise. They certainly looked strong losing by just four points to Oakland last week.

Kansas City 31, Boston 17 — The Chiefs continue their comeback with Mike Garrett's devastating slants and Len Dawson's pinpoint passing picking the Patriots apart.

San Diego 40, Miami 14 — A piece of cake for the Chargers coming off a bye and anxious to erase the memory of that 51-10 thrashing against Oakland two weeks ago. Miami has dropped six straight and this one will make unlucky seven.

NFL

Baltimore 24, Atlanta 10 — Colts won that big one against Green Bay last week and after that, the Falcons should be easy pickings for Johnny Unitas and company.

Green Bay 28, Cleveland 21 — Quite a temptation to pick the Browns here with Packers missing Elijah Pitts and Jim Grabowski. It'll be close, but the Packers will prevail.

Dallas 31, New Orleans 14 — Don Meredith is back and the Cowboys, after some close calls, reflected his return with a big 37-7 victory over Atlanta last week. Saints won their first regular game a week ago, but that streak will come to a quick conclusion.

New York 24, Chicago 14 — The Bears don't have an offense and the Giants don't have a defense, which should make this one interesting. Gale Sayers will make trouble for the Giants' faltering kicking team, but Frank Tarkenton will make nightmares for the Bears.

Los Angeles 17, Philadelphia 6 — The Rams still think they can catch unbeaten Baltimore in the NFL's Coastal Division and with a little help, they may. The in-and-out Eagles will cooperate.

St. Louis 27, Pittsburgh 17 — Jim Hart has made the Cardinals forget Charley Johnson, and Dave Williams has developed into a first rate receiver. Steelers scare no one, certainly not Cards.

Detroit 21, Minnesota 20 — The Vikings are tough at home, but the Lions should be able to handle them. Then again, the Lions should have been able to handle Chicago last week. Who knows?

San Francisco 28, Washington 13 — The puzzling 49ers are due to win one, and the Redskins ought to oblige. Washington unhappy with Sonny Jurgensen, who completed only six passes against St. Louis last Sunday.

Hill Team Faces Arch Rival Today

Back in 1895 or thereabouts, a Lawrenceville football captain vowed he wouldn't wash his jersey until his team lost to The Hill school.

And so developed a tradition at The Hill school that stands today, as each time the Blues win on the gridiron, the Lawrenceville captain is supposed to wash his shirt, while a loss means it stays dirty.

This afternoon, the Blues face a 'clean' shirt when they journey to Lawrenceville in one of the oldest prep-school rivalries in the country, and their season's finale.

For the past two years, the Blues have been victorious, with 26-8 and 20-19 triumphs over their archrivals, to break a Lawrenceville streak of seven victories, during which time that shirt must have gotten quite dirty.

'OLD TRADITION'

"It's an old tradition, but I'm not so sure anybody follows it," Hill Coach Dick O'Shaughnessey said recently.

As for the game itself, O'Shaughnessey sees it "as being pretty even."

Lawrenceville has a 3-4 log, including a victory over Mercersburg, which downed the Hill. However, Lawrenceville lost to Peddie school, which The Hill downed last week for its first triumph of the season.

That victory ended a string of six setbacks for the Blues this season, but the last two of those were by just two points.

IMPROVE TACKLING

In preparation for the battle, O'Shaughnessey said the Blues have "worked awfully hard on improving our tackling."

"I think they're very realistic about it," O'Shaughnessey said. "They realize what it'll take to win."

John Hyatt, who took a pass from quarterback Rick Lee and raced 45 yards with it for the winning touchdown in the Blues' victory last week, and Bill Fairback will be at the ends for The Hill this afternoon in the traditional clash.

Ande Wallin and Wayne Dennis are the tackles, Bill Harris and Steve Revell the guards, with Tony DuBon at center.

Joe Chilberg will quarterback the Blues, with Bill Hale at fullback and Bill Donovan and John Bodley at the halfback posts.

O'Shaughnessey said last week's win was satisfying, but maybe he'd get as much pleasure out of watching the Lawrenceville captain keep that jersey clean for another year.

Lion Bowl Hopes Riding Today

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Penn State, the best that Eastern football has to offer, plays host to nationally ranked North Carolina State Saturday in a top drawer intersecional clash that most likely will spell bowl bid for the winner.

"North Carolina State (8-0) is the most experienced team we've played against," lamented Nittany Lion Coach Joe Paterno. "Their 22 offensive and defensive starters probably will include 17 seniors."

In contrast, 10 sophomores will assume starting roles for the 5-2 Lions, including Fullback Don Abbey in place of senior Dan Lucyk, who injured a knee in the 38-3 victory last weekend over Maryland.

ANOTHER SOPH

"We'll just have to start another sophomore in a game in which we're coming up short on experience, anyway," Paterno complained.

Yet, the sophomores aren't hurting the Lions' offensive output. Tailback Charlie Pittman, who rushed for 106 yards and three touchdowns against the Terps, is the team's leading ground-gainer with a 5.4 average in 77 carries.

Abbey, with a 4.4 average in 57 carries, is second. He also is the team's leading scorer with 59 points on six touchdowns 12 extra points, a two-point conversion and three field goals. Pittman, with six TDS, is second.

A sell-out crowd of some 46,000 is expected for the 1:30 p.m. kick-off in Beaver Stadium as the Wolfpack of Earle Edwards, a Penn State grad and former assistant coach, seek their first victory in five tries over the Lions.

RANKED 3D

North Carolina State, with one of the best defensive records in the nation — no opponent has scored more than one touchdown in eight games — was ranked third in the last weekly Associated Press poll.

Penn State, on the other hand, has been on top of the Lambert Ratings, symbolic of Eastern football supremacy, for the past three weeks. Only a 23-22 loss to Navy and a 17-15 defeat by fourth-ranked UCLA mar an otherwise impressive season for the Paterno men.

With 12 Pennsylvanians on his playing roster and two others, Al Michaels and Bill Smaltz on his coaching staff, the contest takes on added meaning for Edwards.

"Penn State has been a good football team for a long time," he said. "It is a fine school and we have had a lot of pleasant associations with them.

"But nothing would please me more than to beat Penn State this Saturday. And I know Al and Bill feel the same way."

The last time the two schools met, in 1957, they battled to a tie — until the Lions came off with a 14-7 victory in the final, and thrilling four minutes.

Indians Seek 5th Bux-Mont Win

It's been somewhat of a streaky season for the Upper Perkiomen High footballers, and this afternoon the Indians hope to keep the trend going.

The Indians will host North Penn in a Bux-Mont clash, and the homesters are coming off a 31-20 victory over Quakertown last week, which in turn snapped a four game losing streak.

The Indians record now stands at 4-4.

Jim Fiorito will likely be the Indian quarterback this afternoon, and Steve Moyer a halfback as last week, when that setup produced a triumph.

Bob Endy will be the chief target of Fiorito's aerials, while Moyer and John Mallon take care of running duties.

Spartans Battle Giant Killer

By The Associated Press

Will the Great Pumpkin be able to fire up Oregon State for another glowing upset? Does it pay to advertise?

These questions, also directly involving top-ranked Southern California and seventh-ranked Wyoming, are among those that will be answered when college football competition resumes Saturday with a full-scale, coast-to-coast schedule. Only three more big weekends remain after that in the regular campaign.

The Great Pumpkin is Dee Andros, coach of Oregon State's giant-killing Beavers, who take on Southern California, No. 1 in the latest Associated Press poll, at Corvallis, Ore.

Wyoming, unbeaten in eight games, meets New Mexico at Albuquerque.

Second-ranked Tennessee faces Tulane and North Carolina State, No. 3, plays Penn State, which has won four in a row. UCLA, No. 4, meets Washington.

Purdue, No. 5, faces another streaking opponent in Minnesota. The Gophers have won five straight and are unbeaten in the Big Ten.

In other games involving teams in the Top Ten, it's Indiana, No. 6 against Michigan State, Oklahoma, No. 8, against Iowa State, Notre Dame, No. 9, versus Pittsburgh, and Houston, No. 10, against Memphis State.

The Beavers' Andros is a 250-pound ex-Marine sergeant who paces the sidelines in a bright orange jacket, black pants and orange and black shoes.

The Great Pumpkin, so called by Beaver students, and his charges have walked off with two major upsets while compiling a 5-2-1 record. The first was against Purdue when the Boilermakers held second national ranking and the most recent was last week when they tied UCLA 16-16 and dropped the Bruins from second to fourth in the AP poll.

The Trojans, 8-0, will be strengthened by the return of O. J. Simpson. The star running back, sidelined with a foot injury last week, has gained 1,050 yards in 203 carries.

"For two weeks in a row, our offense has been bad," said John McKay, the Trojans' coach. Even if it loses, though, to Oregon State, Southern Cal still could clinch a Rose Bowl bid by defeating UCLA in its final game next week.

Although Wyoming's Cowboys figure to ride herd on New Mexico, which has lost seven in a row, at least one of the Lobos' fans — a woman — thinks they have a chance to win.

The woman, who asked to remain anonymous, placed a full-page advertisement in Friday's Albuquerque Journal urging football fans in that area to support the Lobos in the regionally televised game.

"Don't quit on them," the ad said, in part. "An upset could be in the making."

The other games to be telecast regionally by ABC are Princeton-Harvard, Ohio State-Wisconsin and Georgia-Florida.

Other major games include: Army-Utah, Auburn-Mississippi State, Colorado-Kansas, Duke-Navy, Illinois-Michigan, LSU-Alabama, Nebraska-Oklahoma State, Northwestern-Iowa, Rice-Arakansas, Stanford-Oregon, Syracuse-Holy Cross, Texas A&M-SMU, TCU-Texas Tech, Yale-Penn and Vanderbilt-Kentucky.

Blurred Vision Fails To Halt Palmer Surge

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Arnold Palmer, plagued by blurred vision, rammed in birdies on the last two holes Friday for a two-under-par 70 and took a four-stroke individual lead after 36 holes of the World Cup Golf Tournament.

Palmer, who has never won the individual trophy although he had played on five Cup championship teams, had a 138 total at the halfway point in this tournament for national prestige and personal honor.

Jack Nicklaus, playing erratic golf, shot a one-under 71 to give the Americans a 281 total and a six-stroke lead over Argentina in the team competition.

Palmer got sand in his left eye blasting out of a fairway trap on the first hole, and it bothered him the rest of the round. He used eyewash several times but still couldn't get rid of the last grain.

FEELS FINE

"I feel fine except for this eye," Palmer said. "It gets blurry once in a while. It's just a piece of dirt. Everybody gets that."

Hsieh Yung-Yo of Nationalist China moved into second place in the individual standings with his second straight 71 round for a 142.

Nicklaus was in a third place tie with David Jimenez of Puerto Rico and Florentino Molina of Argentina at 143.

Toni Kugelmuller of West Germany, Fidel de Luca of Argentina, Gary Player of South Africa, George Knudson of Canada, Bob Charles of New Zealand and Mexicans Antonio Cerda and Ricardo Cazares were bunched at 144, par for the 36 holes.

De Luca got the tournament's first eagle on the 565-yard second hole, a par 5.

Jimenez' 73 kept the 25-year-old novice in high company and, except for two bad holes, he might have been even higher than the 7,347-foot altitude which sent Canadians George Knudson and Al Balding to the oxygen bottle.

FEELS PRESSURE

Molina, who fired a first round 68 to tie Palmer for the opening day lead, felt the pressure and buckled with three bogies on the back nine for a 75.

"Everything went wrong after the 11th hole," Molina said.

Nicklaus started the round in crisp, bright, perfect golf weather as if he intended to tear apart the heavily-wooded Club de Golf Mexico course. He was three under par after the first nine. But trouble rode in on storm clouds for the Golden Bear as he bogied three holes on the back nine in weather which threatened a repeat of Thursday's afternoon shower.

Palmer was at par 36 after the first nine and traded birdies and bogies on the 13th and 16th. He sank a 10 foot birdie putt on 17 and a four footer, after a beautiful chip shot, on 18 just as the sun came out again.

Jimenez, who has been on the U.S. pro tour only seven months, got birds on the first two holes but found his ball almost completely imbedded in a sand trap on No. 7. He took a double bogey six.

Mexico's Cazares and Cerda stood third in team standings with 288. Bob Charles and Walter Godfrey of New Zealand had 289 with Makalena and James Ukauka at 290.

"I blew three straight strokes on three straight holes and then bogeyed on top of it," Nicklaus said. "I haven't been driving well in the last few weeks. I only used the driver four times today and fanned a tee shot off the 10th."

LONG DAY

It took the Americans more than five hours to play the rouad.

"I don't know why it takes so long to play," Nicklaus said. "Arnie and I played no differently than our normal pace. But for the foreigners I guess it's different. This may be their biggest tournament. We play so many that one more doesn't make that much difference."

Palmer said tiredness didn't really bother him.

"I feel fine, not tired, except for this eye," he said. "It gets blurry once in a while. It's just a piece of dirt. Everybody gets that."

Canada's Al Balding, playing with a sore back and followed by an oxygen mask, had a disastrous day after his first round 70. He shot a 77 after repeated trouble and had to hit through a three-foot wire fence on the 17th.

George Knudson, the Canadian who is defending his 1966 individual championship, shot a 71 to go with his opening 73.

A FREAK PAYOFF

FOUNTAIN, Colo. (AP) — A horse named No Talk caused plenty of talk at Pikes Peak Meadows. He won the seventh race one afternoon, paid $77.40 to win and $260.40 to place. It was a Colorado record for second-place payoffs.

Pennsylvania Hold Key in Pitt-Irish Game

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame plays Pitt Saturday in quest of its sixth victory of the season. And if the Irish roll up the six touchdown edge they are given over the Panthers, Notre Dame's Pennsylvania contingent will be kept busy.

Notre Dame's leading scorer is kicking specialist Joe Azzaro of Pittsburgh. Azzaro tops the Irish with 43 points, one ahead of fullback Jeff Zimmerman.

Zimmerman, from Orwigsburg, Pa., has seven touchdowns and 42 points. He was on the bench for the first two games and finally got to play when Ron Dushney, a junior from Peckville, Pa., was injured. The two now share the fullback duties but Zimmerman has won the starting job.

Of course, Notre Dame's biggest offensive threat is passing master Terry Hanratty, star quarterback from Butler, Pa.

Hanratty is tied for third in Notre Dame scoring with 30 points on five touchdowns.

As if that isn't enough Pennsylvania flavor, John Pergine, Notre Dame's No. 1 linebacker, is from Norristown, Pa.

Pergine has made 68 tackles for an average of nearly 10 a game, recovered one fumble and intercepted two of 13 passes picked off by Irish defenders.

Then there's Mike McCoy, the 270-pound tackle from Erie, Pa., who is making it big as a sophomore.

In all, the Irish roster lists nine players from Pennsylvania including guard Dan Dickman, Pittsburgh; linebacker Chuck Landolfi, Ellwood City and defensive end Dewey Poskin, Elizabeth.

NY Recalls Williams From Westchester

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Giants reactivated defensive back Willie Williams and recalled Randy Minniear, an offensive halfback, from Westchester of the Atlantic Coast League Friday in bringing their National Football League roster to the 40-player limit.

Williams played for the Giants in 1965 and for Oakland of the American League last season. The Giants placed him on their taxi squad after he was released by the Raiders.

Minniear, from Purdue, was drafted in 1966. However, he fractured a leg in training camp and did not play during that season.

The Giants trimmed their roster earlier this week by placing halfback Allen Jacobs on the waived injured list and releasing Mike Fitzgerald, a defensive halfback.

Jets Place Halfback Boozer on Injury List

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Jets Friday placed fullback Emerson Boozer on the waived injured list and reserve guard and tackle Pete Perreault on the taxi squad.

The moves put the club two below the player limit. Both spots probably will be filled before Sunday's game with Buffalo.

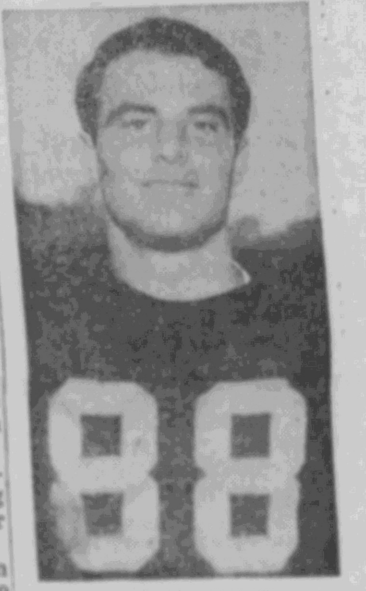
Matt Snell, fullback who has been out since the start of the season with an injury, will be one of the players activated, the club indicated.

Two Area Gridders at Millersville

Two former area gridders earned varsity berths with the Millersville State college team this past season.

Barry Meng, who played his high school ball at Boyertown under coach Nick Noel, lettered as a sophomore before missing a year because of injuries.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne R. Meng, Perkiomenville,



BARRY MENG

Barry is a junior majoring in biology.

John Johnson, former Schwenksville High athlete, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Almon Johnson, Perkiomen avenue, Spring Mount.

A tackle, John has ben hampered by a knee injury and has seen only limited action, but coach Karl Kane expects him to see a good bit of action next year. Johnson is also a junior majoring in industrial arts.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A customer of the famous Dallas establishment of Neiman-Marcus that the management never will forget was a Mrs. Electra Waggoner Wharton, whose husband's oil fortune was a hundred million dollars or so back in the twenties—when dollars were worth a lot more than they are today. Mrs. Wharton, when in the mood for shopping, would run up a bill for twenty thousand dollars in a single day—just for knick-knacks, so you can understand why Mr. Neiman and Mr. Marcus like to wait on her themselves. One of Mrs. Wharton's playful habits was to bring a gun to the dinner table when she was hosting a little do for a hundred guests. When the soup was served, she'd fire a few shots into the air—and a good time was had by all.

Two little shavers were sitting on a fence rail industriously chewing bubble gum when one suddenly announced, "I'm five years old. How old are you?" "Dunno," was the answer. "Hmm," mused the first. "Do women bother you?" "Not a bit," said the second. The first nodded sagely and opined, "You're four!"

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Wiesenthal, the man who found Adolf Eichmann, said in Paris last month that Martin Borman, Adolf Hitler's heir, was living in Brazil near the Paraguayan border.

Reagan Calls For Steps to End Viet War

SEATTLE (AP)—California Gov. Ronald Reagan, still disclaiming any presidential ambitions, called Friday for "whatever steps are necessary to bring an honorable end" to the war in Vietnam.

Asked about the Johnson administration's Vietnam policies at a news conference here, Reagan said. "If Vietnam is a symbol of their foreign policy it's time to let somebody else have a crack at it."

Reagan turned aside the usual questions about the Republican presidential nomination by saying, "I am not a candidate."

As to chances of Washington Gov. Dan Evans being on the national ticket, Reagan declined to speculate, but said he believed the west would have a large voice at the GOP national convention because of the westward population shift.

Evans, who joined Reagan in the news conference, also declined to answer directly questions about Reagan's presidential prospects. But he said "I think the governor of the largest state in the nation has to be considered a major force in the party."

Arriving in a pelting rain for a two-day fund-raising tour on behalf of local Republican organizations in the Pacific Northwest, Reagan was met at Boeing Field by Evans and about two dozen persons.

Reagan and Evans rode together to the downtown hotel where Evans was to introduce the California governor at a $100 a plate fund-raising luncheon.

They were greeted at the hotel by pickets from the United Farm Workers Union (AFL-CIO) protesting Reagan's use of convict labor for farm work in California. He was asked about that at the news conference and denied he was interferring in labor-management relations.

"We had a terrible shortage of farm workers," he said, "and the so-called labor leaders have been unable to deliver a working force."

Reagan was to fly to Portland after the luncheon for a $50-a-plate fund-raising dinner. He will deliver a Veterans Day address Saturday in Albany, Ore.

Apollo 4 in Good Shape After Ride

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Apollo 4, the unmanned moonship that rode America's maiden Saturn 5 super-rocket deep into space, Friday headed toward Hawaii as jubilant flight controllers began assessing reams of data collected on its 8½-hour mission.

The cone-shaped spacecraft, its heat shield charcoal black in places from a fiery 25,000 mile-an-hour re-entry through earth's atmosphere, was pronounced "in very good shape" by space officials as it rode aboard its prime recovery ship toward Pearl Harbor.

DUE LATE TODAY

National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesmen said the capsule was expected to arrive at the port late Saturday and remain there for about three days until technicians deactivate electrical systems and steering rockets.

From there, it was to be trucked to Hickam Air Force Base, Hawaii, and flown to Long Beach, Calif., near its final destination at the Downey, Calif., plant of North American Rockwell Corp., prime spacecraft contractor. Apollo 4 was expected to arrive at Downey late next week.

Space agency officials said enough data was collected during the the triumphant first flight of the towering Saturn 5 and its Apollo moonship payload to fill an encyclopedia during each minute of its eight-hour, 36-minute mission.

EVERY SECOND

During Project Mercury, when astronauts flew one-at-a-time in space, the amount of data collected in the worldwide tracking network "was the equivalent of a standard printed page every second," NASA said.

In Project Apollo, enough data is collected during missions to match the wordage of an average novel each second, "or an encyclopedia of material each minute," the space agency said.

Meanwhile, in the Soviet Union, Izvestia Friday reported briefly and without editorial comment on America's space feat, failing to mention that the Saturn booster is the world's largest rocket.

The 363-foot-tall Saturn 5, heaviest and most powerful vehicle to ever fly, lofted the unmanned moonship 11,234 miles into space Thursday. From this altitude, Apollo 4 dived at 25,000 miles an hour —the speed astronauts will travel when returning to earth from the moon—to a bullseye landing in the Pacific, about 520 miles north of Hawaii.

BOOSTS MORALE

Dr. Robert C. Seamans, NASA deputy administrator, said the textbook flight not only accomplished all its goals but boosted morale of America's Apollo man-to-the-moon team, which suffered a grim setback last January when three astronauts died in a launch pad fire.

"The morale of those involved in the Apollo program following the accident was low," Seamans said. "Everyone involved felt that it must have been something he or she could have done to have avoided the accident.

"I am sure the team itself has wondered whether they were really up to the job and up to the responsibility. I am sure the results achieved (by Saturn 5) clearly demonstrate that this team of people truly has the competence to not only take on the manned lunar landing program but any other objective that this country feels is important," he said.

Director of Launch Impressed by Success

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The greatest rocket ever launched had just achieved one of the most significant advances in the space age. The man who directed the effort commented: "I was impressed."

Succinct comments like this are typical of Air Force Maj. Gen. Samuel C. Phillips, who manages America's Apollo man to the moon program.

Rather than try to focus attention on himself, he'd rather emphasize the team effort in talking about major achievements such as that recorded Thursday by the Saturn 5 superrocket.

MOST POWERFUL

"This was, I believe," Phillips said, "the most powerful rocket, perhaps the most powerful machine in terms of energy per second, that's ever performed. And you could almost feel the power of the launch team during the night and on through the early morning hours in the last minutes and seconds of that countdown.

"I've been through a lot of countdowns on rockets. I've been in various positions in various launch operations over the years, and I was tremendously impressed with the smooth teamwork that this combined government-industry team put together. It was smooth, it was professional, it was confident, it was perfect in every respect."

Phillips has had a long record in research and development and rocketry.

Born in Arizona in 1921, Phillips grew up in Cheyenne, Wyo.

In 1942, he earned a degree of engineering from the University of Wyoming. Following two 8th Air Force tours in Europe during World War II, he received a master of science degree in electrical engineering at the University of Michigan.

His specialty in electronics eventually led him to a position as chief of logistics for the Strategic Air Command's 7th Air Division in England.

In this position he had his first taste of rocketry, helping write the international agreement with Great Britain that permitted basing of U.S. Thor missiles in that country.

In 1959 he was assigned to the Air Force ballistic missiles division, as director of the Minuteman intercontinental range ballistic missile program.

His organizational ability attracted the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and in 1964, he joined NASA as deputy director of the budding Apollo project. Nine months later he was director of the program.

TOUGH CHANGES

As program director, he has ramrodded many tough management changes throughout both NASA and its Apollo industrial contractors.

He had one of his toughest moments last Jan. 28, when he was the first NASA official to face the press after the Apollo 1 fire that killed three astronauts.

The Saturn 5 flight, he said, greatly increases the chance that American astronauts can land on the moon in this decade.

Best Close-ups Yet of Moon's Surface Relayed

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Pictures a scientist called "the most dramatic close-ups yet of the moon" streamed back Friday from Surveyor 6.

Dr. Eugene Shoemaker of the U.S. Geological Survey used the phrase in describing cliffs, trenches and craters in the rugged area where the three-legged spacecraft touched down Thursday, almost dead center on the lunar disk.

Shoemaker, a member of the scientific team analyzing the photographs at Jet Propulsion Laboratory, had high praise for the sharpness and clarity of the television camera aboard the 650-pound robot.

The team is studying the pictures to determine whether the site, in the Sinus Medii—Central Bay—is safe for manned landings.

LANDS INTACT

Surveyor 6 apparently landed undamaged on a slight slope, in camera range of hills and long, narrow deprssions unlike anything yet photographed in the moon-scouting Surveyor series. Because of the curvature of the lunar surface, the horizon is only a mile away.

Radio controllers tried early in the day to arouse Surveyor 5, resting in the dry Sea of Tranquility 400 miles to the west, but the craft did not respond to signals.

They said it might not have warmed up sufficiently after the just-ended two-week-long lunar night, during which temperatures drop to 600 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. Surveyor 5 has sent 18,006 photographs since it landed Sept. 10.

New Weather Satellite Is Heading for Orbit

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — A new "instant weather" satellite vehicle shot toward polar orbit Friday with two cameras designed to offer cloud pictures to the United States and 45 foreign nations every six minutes.

If successful, the Environmental Science Services Administration satellite was to be named ESSA 6.

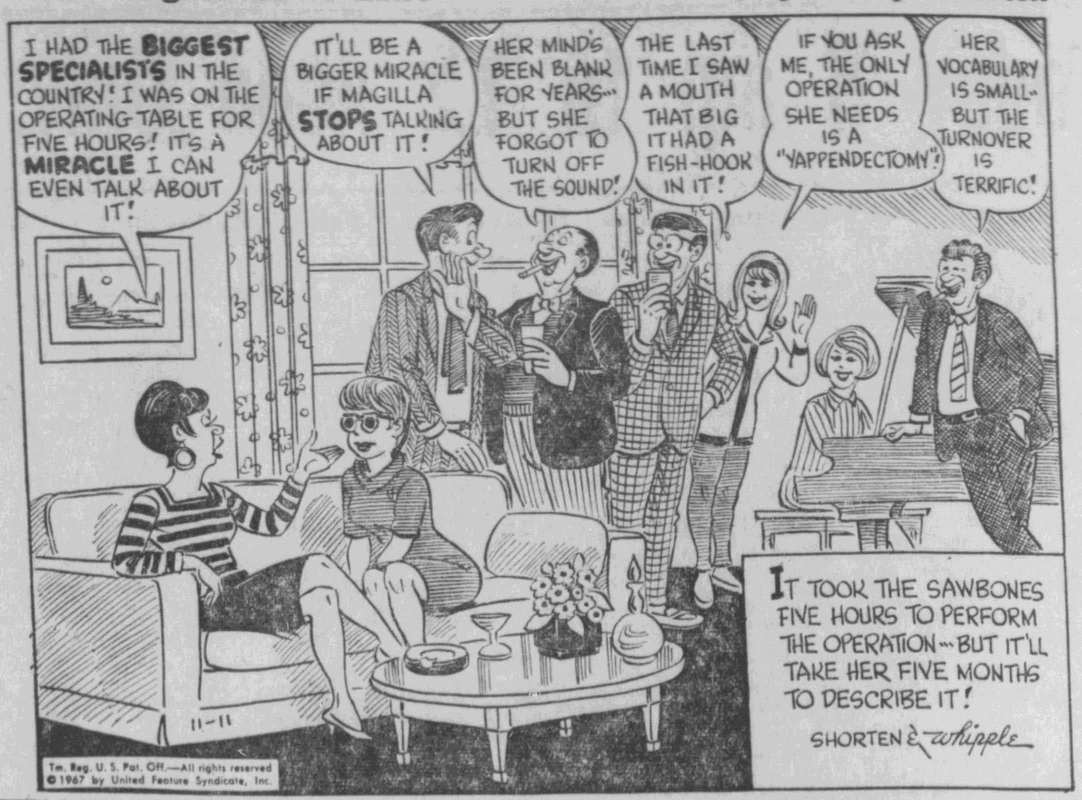
There Oughta Be A Law!

By Harry Shorten



I HAD THE BIGGEST SPECIALISTS IN THE COUNTRY! I WAS ON THE OPERATING TABLE FOR FIVE HOURS! IT'S A MIRACLE I CAN EVEN TALK ABOUT IT!
IT'LL BE A BIGGER MIRACLE IF MAGILLA STOPS TALKING ABOUT IT!
HER MIND'S BEEN BLANK FOR YEARS... BUT SHE FORGOT TO TURN OFF THE SOUND!
THE LAST TIME I SAW A MOUTH THAT BIG IT HAD A FISH-HOOK IN IT!
IF YOU ASK ME, THE ONLY OPERATION SHE NEEDS IS A "YAPPENDECTOMY"!
HER VOCABULARY IS SMALL... BUT THE TURNOVER IS TERRIFIC!
11-11
IT TOOK THE SAWBONES FIVE HOURS TO PERFORM THE OPERATION... BUT IT'LL TAKE HER FIVE MONTHS TO DESCRIBE IT!

Jennifer Jones 'Much Improved'

JENNIFER JONES

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Film star Jennifer Jones was "coming around nicely" Friday after being found seemingly lifeless at the base of a seaside cliff.

Sheriff's deputies found her awash in the surf at Malibu after, they said, her doctor told authorities she had telephoned to say she was taking some pills.

By Friday morning, said a spokesman for Mt. Sinai Hospital, the Academy Award winning actress ("Song of Bernadette" 1943) was much improved and "doing fine."

APPEARS DEAD

Deputies said that when they found her Thursday night she was not breathing and appeared dead. One revived her by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Officers pieced together this account:

Late Thursday Miss Jones drove from her Bel Air mansion, where her second husband, producer David O. Selznick ("Gone With the Wind") died two years ago, to Malibu 15 miles away.

In a curious throwback to her earlier life, she registered at a motel as Phylis Walker. She was born Phylis Isley in Tulsa, Okla., 48 years ago, and in 1939 she married Robert Walker when both were struggling performers.

The actress asked if there were a telephone in her room and, told there wasn't, went to a public phone a block away; called her physician and said she intended to swallow some pills.

CONDUCT SEARCH

The physician notified police, and a search began.

Deputies Paul Piet and Eldon Loken found Miss Jones' 1968 auto parked near a 400-foot cliff. They clambered down a rocky trail and found her, clad in tan slacks and a white blouse, at the water's edge. A sweater and shoes were placed neatly 40 feet away.

The actress, pale and soaked, did not appear to be breathing. The deputies felt a heartbeat through her back as they turned her over, and one applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Soon she resumed breathing.

Miss Jones, unconscious, was taken to Malibu Emergency Hospital where her stomach was pumped. Authorities said seconal and an alcoholic beverage, probably wine, were found. She was transferred to Mt. Sinai and regained consciousness six hours later.

After a modest introduction to the screen as Roy Rogers' leading lady, Miss Jones scored impressively in her first big film, "Song of Bernadette," which won her the Oscar. Meanwhile Walker, father of her two sons, had also moved ahead, starring in "See Here, Private Hargrove."

They co-starred in "Since You Went Away," produced by her boss, David O. Selznick. The marriage fell apart, and the trouble was attributed to conflicting careers. But gossip indicated the real reason was Selznick's increasing attachment to his beautiful young star.

DIVORCES WALKER

Miss Jones divorced Walker in 1945 and four years later married Selznick. The Selznicks had one daughter, Mary Jennifer, now 13. Walker suffered a mental breakdown and underwent treatment at Menninger's Clinic. He died in 1951 from complications following a medical injection.

The actress has been withdrawn throughout her Hollywood career and once explained her distaste for publicity: "I have no talent for it. Some people do. But I don't give out anecdotes and angles."

She has made many distinguished films, including "Love Letters," Duel in the sun," "Madame Bovary," "Carrie," "Beat the Devil," "The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit," "Love is a Many Splendored Thing", "Farewell to Arms" and "Tender is the Night." Her latest film was "The Idol" with Michael Parks, made in England two years ago.

Johnson Awards Silver Star to Army Captain

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Army Capt. Donald R. Sims stood proudly in the warm sun at Doughboy Stadium Friday and received the Silver Star and the congratulations of his President.

"What's your hometown?"

"Bogalusa, Louisiana, sir,"

"We're neighbors," said the Texan named Lyndon Johnson.

For Sims, it was a day of deeper signifidance than it might have been before March 11, 1966. That was the day that Sims, then home on leave after duty in Germany, was shot in the shoulder by a white man while the captain was in a telephone booth.

"I tell you, this was very demoralizing," the 31-year-old Negro said in an interview shortly after he had received the award for bravery in Vietnam.

30 Arrested In Theft of Diners Cards

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal authorities disclosed Friday more than 30 persons have been arrested in the theft of 2,000 Diners Club cards from an embossing plant early this year, and underworld figures are involved.

Postal inspectors estimated the thieves, and those who bought spurious credit cards from them for several hundred dollars each, had run up some $350,000 in bills for goods, services and credit.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Terry Lenzner said the thieves were involved with organized crime and the stolen credit cards had aided the traffic in narcotics, gambling, prostitution and other underworld activities.

The case came to light with the arraignment of Alphonse Confessore, 30, who was a repair man in the Queens embossing plant of Dashew Business Machines Co. but has since lost his job.

RELEASED ON BAIL

Confessore was released in $5,000 bail after pleading innocent to a conspiracy charge, and another hearing was set for Nov. 22.

Also named in the conspiracy indictment were John Kellerman, a neighbor of Confessore in Queens said to be a fugitive; Joseph Pucci, and Phil Travers, 40, both of Brooklyn.

Authorities said the conspirators stole blank Diners Club cards, which were at the Dashew plant awaiting embossing. They also stole a list of bona fide Diners Club members.

Then, authorities said, they embossed members' names on the cards with a machine at the plant.

3 Men in Firebomb Death Jailed on Kidnap Charge

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (AP — Three of 12 white men indicted in the 1966 firebomb death of a Negro civil rights worker were jailed Friday on charges they kidnaped a man and tried to force him to give a phony statement in the case.

State officers arrested Sam Holloway Bowers Jr., 42, Cecil Victor Sessums, 31, and Deavours Nix, 44, all identified by the FBI as as members of the militant White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

The three were taken into custody in Laurel, Miss., early in the day and transferred to the Pascagoula jail, 60 miles away, pending arraignment.

AMONG 12 MEN

They are among 12 Laurel area men under federal court indictment charging conspiracy in the bombing attack on the home and store of Vernon F. Dahmer Sr., a Negro businessman in Hattiesburg, Miss., and former president of the Forrest County branch of the NAACP.

The indictment charges that the men conspired to "intimidate, threaten and coerce" Dahmer for urging other Negroes to vote. Dahmer died of burns after the Jan. 10, 1966, attack.

Trial of the Dahmer case had originally been set for last Monday, but was postponed without explanation last week. The judge has not set a new date.

The kidnaping charges against Bowers, Sessums and Nix came Thursday, just four hours after a fourth man, Billy Roy Pitts, 23, pleaded guilty to kidnaping Jack Watkins, 43, an ex-convict and chemical plant worker. Pitts also is one of the 12 charged in the Dahmer case.

Pitts and Travis Buckley, who recently quit as Jasper County prosecuting attorney, were indicted in March on the kidnaping charge. Buckley went to trial, but his case ended with a hung jury.

Dist. Atty. Cumbest said the kidnaping of Watkins took place after word got out that the prosecution in the Dahmer slaying would base part of its case on testimony from Lawrence Byrd of Laurel. Byrd, also identified by the FBI as a Klansman, was initially arrested in the Dahmer case, but was not indicted.

Bickford's Wishes for No Funeral Service Followed

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Charles Bickford, who prided himself on being a rebel among actors, died Thursday night at 78, leaving instructions that there be no funeral service.

The family of the veteran character actor said Friday his body would be privately cremated, in accordance with his wishes.

Bickford succumbed at University of California at Los Angeles Medical Center, where he was hospitalized last July following an attack of emphysema. The illness later was complicated by pneumonia and an infection in the bloodstream.

NEVER QUIT

The actor said he would never retire, and he didn't. He had been working steadily as the hard-fisted ranch owner on the television series, "The Virginian," until he was taken ill.

Though Bickford was known to film fans for his portrayals of industrialists, fathers and politicians, he was prouder of his private image of nonconformist.

"I was stubborn," he once said. "I refused to conform and fit into the set up. I got an impression early in life I was born into a jungle and the way to survive is fight."

His associates described him as hard, strong and gruff. One recently recalled, "He hates anyone playing up to him. But if you play it straight with him, he will be you."

CHARLES BICKFORD

This speak-your-mind attitude was the basis of dispute with Louis B. Mayer, and the producer fired him.

"I wouldn't give in," Bickford admitted, "I wouldn't be disciplined, ...and Mayer said I would never play again."

But, never at a loss for ways of making a living, Bickford diversified. At the time of his death, he owned a feed business for race horses,a delivery service, and a telephone exchange for Beverly Hills doctors. In the years before his acting career began, Bickford had proved his self-sufficiency, working as a roughneck logger, hobo, barker, roach exterminator and vaudeville performer. He once was lightweight boxing champion of the Pacific Fleet.

Survivors include Bickford's widow, actress Beatrice Loring, and a married son and daughter.

CANADIAN FIRST

OTTAWA (AP) — For the first time in Canadian history an Indian, Chief John Charley, 30, leader of the Loucheaux and hunter-trapper in the Fort McPherson area, has been named a member of the Northwest Territories Council. The council, serving as provincial governments do elsewhere in Canada, previously had acquired its first Eskimo member, Abe Okpik.
